

WE NOMINATE

Lesley Bush, a delightful and thoroughly refreshing 17-year old, who over the past week has understandably become this Olympic-minded community's best publicized resident. Ever since early last Thursday morning, when the report was flashed from Tokyo that Miss Bush, a senior in Princeton High School, had earned the Gold Medal in the women's platform diving competition, her adopted "home town," accustomed over the decades to the presence of men and women of distinction, has shaken its customary aplomb. The achievement of an unheralded youngster in the Olympic natatorium has induced a sense of pride approaching tidal-wave proportions.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Bush, 241 Dodds Lane, whose soft-spoken reactions to their daughter's splendid triumph and to the pressures inevitably generated by the American press have been exemplary, Miss Bush has dramatically helped rebut the unthinking contentions of those ever critical of "this upcoming generation." Her courage in the presence of 1,000's of applauding spectators, her poise in victory, and her conduct before news cameras in the presence of favorites she had unexpectedly defeated have shaped an image that even the Cassandras and Jeremiahs will have difficulty shaking.

Of all the anecdotes and comments which have surfaced since Miss Bush edged out representatives of Germany and the Soviet Union on her final dive none have more appeal and significance than the reminiscences of Princeton University's diving coach, Robert D. Schneider. Throughout the pre-Olympic year, and often "seven mornings a week," she worked out in the Dillon Gymnasium Pool. "I would call for her every morning at her home at 6:00," Schneider reports. "We would then train, and had, until 7:15 or 7:30 and then I would drive her on to the High School."

A native of Orange, N. J., whose family, including two younger brothers, moved here from Arizona in 1962, Miss Bush was first exposed to "Princeton swimming" some eight years ago. Her first coach, after she had been inoculated with the "diving bug," was Maxwell Vogt, now assistant coach in the University and then affiliated with the Newark Athletic Club. Last in the first formal diving competition she entered, she developed so rapidly that she was a place-winner at age 13 in the National Championships and was ready for the Olympic Try-Outs.

Although she appears smaller than she actually is (5'3" tall and 115 pounds) when poised 33 feet above the water's surface, she has been described as "possibly the strongest woman diver" ever to represent this country. Balanced with her athletic prowess, and apparently unlimited potential, are a "strong academic record," unqualified praise from teachers for never permitting diving to interfere with studies, and her determination to enter Indiana University where she will probably "major" in either science or English.

For stirring within this community a sense of participation in the Tokyo Olympiad; for inspiring the following evaluation by an educator long accustomed to analyzing young men and women of marked promise — "All of this couldn't have happened to a finer person"; she is our nominee as

Parade Planned to Honor Olympic Champion Lesley Bush

A "Welcome Home Parade," the first in Princeton's history, is being planned to greet Lesley Bush, the first Princeton resident to become an Olympic champion.

A Gold Medal winner at Tokyo (see "Woman of the Week"), Miss Bush will be honored the day she returns home, an occasion that is expected to take place next week. Service and civic clubs, fellow students at Princeton High School and a number of interested individuals have formed a "Welcome Home, Lesley" committee, with Charles B. Petzold of 179 Longview Drive as chairman.

Plans call for the parade to originate at the Pennsylvania Railroad station, where Mayor Patterson will welcome Miss Bush and the Woman's Club will present her with flowers. The line of march will proceed up University Place, along Nassau Street to Witherspoon, then to Jackson, Avalon Place and the YM-YWCA. There she will receive a plaque from the people of Princeton commemorating the occasion.

Flags will mark the route of the parade, signs and banners will further decorate the center of town and music

"DEAR EDITOR"

"This Needs to Be Said." As they have often been at other times of year, Princetonians were minded during the past week to say what they thought in print. Letters to TOWN TOPICS covered a variety of subject matter, not all of it political despite the rapid approach of November 3.

A woman who was ticketed by police for a somewhat unusual violation used the occasion to make suggestions for improved traffic control.

Senator Harrison Williams sent a copy of the cablegram he dispatched to Lesley Bush in Tokyo the day she became a Gold Medal winner in Olympic competition.

On the political front, the belief of the Princeton Republican Club that the highly-controversial literature attacking President Johnson should be made available "in the public interest" continued to come under fire. One woman illustrated her viewpoint in fable form, another found herself "a little bit shocked by Mr. Shoch."

In October, 1964, these were among Princetonians' thoughts of the day:

Suggestions to Police Dept.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Today I received a summons from the Princeton Borough police for "backing into a parking space where prohibited." My annoyance is outweighed by gratification that a more than half-empty parking yard is under constant surveillance at mid-day.

I wonder if the police could also cover areas along Nassau Street during the day to eliminate double parking and help someone who is legally parked move a car hemmed in on three sides? Or help traffic on Witherspoon Street detour around a double-parked truck and only one lane is open for both north and south movement.

Or prevent trucks from double parking on Spring Street so that only a MG could squeeze through. When blocked by a truck on Spring Street last week I had to back more than half a block out and would have appreciated some help at the Witherspoon Street intersection when vision was blocked at both corners by oversize trucks.

Congratulations, Lesley!

To the Editor of Town Topics: I am sure all of us in New Jersey are proud of the performance of Miss Lesley Bush of Princeton in the Olympic Games.

On Friday October 16, the following cablegram was sent to Miss Bush from this office: Miss Lesley Bush United States Olympic Team Olympic Village Tokyo, Japan

Dear Lesley, Your perfect Dive, which made a ripple in the pool in Tokyo, makes a big splash here in New Jersey. Congratulations on your Olympic Victory. We are all proud of you.

"Put Up Or Shut Up"

To the Editor of Town Topics: The question at issue is, does the Republican Party in Princeton back the sentiments expressed in "A Choice not an Echo" and other such pamphlets? There is obviously no question about the right of anyone to sell the books or to read them; but more, where do Republicans stand, with these books or against them?

The answer, as expressed by Mr. Erdman and the advertisements in the papers is quite clear. Yes, the Republican Party in Princeton does stand back of them.

That's why so many decent Republicans have quit. As for the others, let them put up or shut up. They must either disassociate themselves entirely from this filth, or stand up and be counted as true believers. You can't have it both ways.

Hands Washed?

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Mr. Schuch shocks me a little. It is one thing to pass out disreputable propaganda without knowing it is disreputable and something else to put up a sign, "Hate Literature," and then pass it out, isn't it?

Of course Mr. Schuch thinks just giving it a label washes his Republican hands? This rather sinister naivete seems fairly typical of the coterie calling itself the Republican Party which has come huffing out of nowhere to take charge of the national morality.

At the top, Mr. Goldwater admits he accused Johnson of being soft on Communism just to see what reaction it would get. In other words, just let Harry know what you want him to say and he'll be only too happy to oblige.

The customer is always right.

JEAN A. STARKS

Kingston

A Fable for Fall, 1964.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Once upon a time there was a candy store proprietor. One day, much to his surprise he received a shipment of two kinds of candy which he had not ordered. A price was marked on the boxes, but a note indicated that the candy was an anonymous donation and he could sell it for any price he liked. He did not know where it had come from, he said, but it was quite attractively packaged.

Unfortunately though, some children that bought it became quite sick. Several trained experts in this sort of product examined it and pronounced that it had been manufactured in quite flagrant violation of all laws of sanitation. The violations were such that even people of average intelligence and information might not detect at once what was being put over on them. These experts naturally called the attention of the candy store proprietor to what he was doing. His reaction was an odd one. Personally he said he had eaten none of the candy and so could offer no opinion as to its wholesomeness. However, he felt that the personal liberty of the adults and children who came into his store would be infringed if he failed to expose the candy to them and give them an opportunity to try it out on their own personal decisions.

In this case of course, the Food and Drug Administration became interested. What a pity if such tactics should eventually lead to Federal interference in others' fields!

Republicans' Silence Hit.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Mrs. James M. Galling's concern for the preservation of the two-party system expressed in her letter to TOWN TOPICS last week is commendable, but her choice of local candidates to preserve it is curious. Her worry that the Democratic Party may be rendered vulnerable for a takeover by the extreme left is puzzling since that Party is so manifestly spreading out in its orientation to fill the vacuum in the right center. And she had better ask the Republican state and local candidates some particularly searching questions if her worry about the Republican Party's being taken over by the extreme right is to be quelled. Senator Case has repudiated the Goldwater-Miller ticket and the Republican extreme right. The New Jersey Republican candidates for the Senate and House, however, embrace Goldwater.

Messrs. Carrick and English in the Borough and Wilson in the Township, whom Mrs. Galling supports, have thus far carefully evaded the issue of their relationship to the heads of their ticket. Nor have they seen fit to disavow the extremist hate literature being dispensed during the campaign by the Princeton Republican Club from their Nassau Street headquarters. Thus the community has no way of knowing where they stand on Goldwater or on extremism.

On the local level it is surely the long-standing dominance of Republicans which, if anything, poses a threat to the two-party cause by voting for Democrats Bartolino and Durbin for Borough Council to increase Democratic representation from one in six to three in six, and for Sloane for Township Committee, thereby giving that solidly Republican body the Democratic representation it does not now have. An added, if perhaps in this context irrelevant, attraction of the candidates of these men is that, unlike their Republican opponents, they have taken the trouble to declare themselves on specific local issues in the current campaign.

WILLIAM J. BAUMOL

Balancing the Record.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The need for the present controversy over the sale of two books at the local Republican Headquarters is disturbing in such a community as Princeton, where reasoned judgment is expected to prevail. But Mr. Schoch's reply that the fair and just way is to let readers judge for themselves is encouraging.

In the interests, then, of a balanced inquiry into the merits of one book in particular, it would be helpful to have displayed along with the books in question the other side of the coin. I have therefore, turned over to

Mr. Schoch a copy of a report on "None Dare Call It Treason", an investigation prepared by the National Committee for Civic Responsibility.

This organization is prohibited "by its code of regulations... from taking a partisan position on any public issue except in instances where violence is advocated or practiced or where calumny — the malicious use of falsehood — is used to intimidate or discredit." The copy of this report is taken from the Congressional Record, into which was read by Representative Charles Vanik of Ohio.

The report examines references of the text of the book within the Committee's prescribed areas of investigation. They are indeed curious some lead precisely nowhere; others lead to the opposite of Mr. Stormer's assertions; and at least one is a positive boomerang of his contentions.

Of themselves these particular items reveal such flagrant abuse of fact and his "sources" as to reflect on the credibility of his entire book. What appears to be an impressive array of references and "documentation" on which his assertions purport to be based, turns out, on careful scrutiny, to consist largely of opinions or conjectures of individuals and vague citations from the Congressional Record and hearings of investigating committees. In most instances, no distinction is drawn between conclusions of the committees and mere testimony before them, which even criminals and Communists may be called upon to provide.

Since the stated purpose of stocking the books in the first place was to satisfy requests, Mr. Schoch will surely not refuse to furnish responsible Republicans with material which contribute to their evaluation. I understand that, though copies of "None Dare Call It Treason" are out of supply, more have been ordered by Republican Headquarters. We trust that Mr. Schoch will provide an equal number of the Committee's Report, which may be ordered from Congressman Vanik's office in the House Office Building in Washington.

I-95 ONCE MORE
Highway Official Here. A "cost-estimate" route for highway I-95 has been drawn by state highway engineers across the northwestern section of Princeton Township.

Mayor William L. Wilson told Township Committee Monday night that, in reply to a letter of inquiry written by Gerald Brees, chairman of the Township Planning Board, the highway department had sent an engineer to an executive session of the Board to talk about highway plans.

"I cannot overestimate the magnitude of this matter," Mayor Wilson said. "It warrants our best efforts, and we must fight it, not shrug it off, employing special counsel, if we have to, in order to deal with state and Federal officials."

The engineer who came before the planners was James R. Schuyler, deputy administrator of the State Highway Department and its chief engineer. He talked with Board members on Monday, October 7, and told them that, although no definite alignment for I-95 exists as yet, the route that slices off a part of the northwestern Township is the most feasible, if not the most economical.

"THE GOBLINS'LL GIT YOU IF YOU DON'T WATCH OUT!" It's that time again, and Peterson's pumpkin patch on the Princeton-Laurenceville Road proves it. It's time for witches and ghouls, pint-size ghosts, tangy apple cider, and — if anybody remembers him — James Whitcomb Riley. (Staff Photo)

Tell Us Why Not. He asked that the Planning Board draw up its own suggestions and comments, giving good and valid reasons why the highway should not go through the Township. Such a detailed statement, Mr. Schuyler said, would be given full consideration by highway department engineers.

Mr. Schuyler then reminded the Planning Board that, in some instances, 27 different routes for a highway were considered before a final one was determined, and he said he had conferred with many communities already about I-95, and would welcome reasons and comments from Princeton Township, as well.

A Planning Board work session was scheduled for Tuesday of this week, and a spokesman for the Board said that a date would probably be set for a full, executive discussion of the highway. Mr. Schuyler sent to the Board a copy of the highway department's map

GOP Shelves "Hale" Books

The argument over the presence of two criticized "hale" books for sale at Republican Headquarters here is apparently at an end.

As of Monday evening, the two paperbooks, "A Texan Looks at Lyndon" and "None Dare Call It Treason," were no longer on sale at the GOP office at 18 Nassau Street. According to a worker at the headquarters, "the last copies in stock have been sold."

Nor will the books be re-ordered. Decision not to restock has been made by the executive committee of the Princeton Republican Club.

so that Board members could have something to work from.

A Rocky Road. A straight line northeast from the Scudders Falls bridge over the Delaware to a point on Route 287 near South Bound Brook, traverses one of the highest parts of Princeton Township, including the so-called "Cradle Rock" near Province Line Road.

This land is underlain with the almost impermeable diabase used by Kingston Trap Rock for road surfacing. To the north, in Hopewell Township, residents have already raised a protest against the highway. To the south, the land is just as rocky if not more so and extremely valuable as land.

"This route would remove valuable rateables from the Township tax rolls," Mayor Wilson reminded Committee, "and its construction would undoubtedly depreciate other property nearby, so that the Township would face a sharp increase in its tax rate to make up the loss. The state itself should see the fallacy of putting a highway here."

"It would be a disaster for Open Space," commented John O. Green, "and furthermore, it is totally inconsistent with the position of the Federal government on open space."

At his Tuesday press conference, Mayor Henry Patterson of the Borough, expressed his agreement with Mayor Wilson about the potential disaster of a Route I-95 through the Township.

"But," Mayor Patterson observed, "how can you tell the state, no, you don't want Route I-95 in the Township, you want it in someone else's municipality, and then tell them you want a 206-by-pass in somebody else's back yard, too?"

MILLER HERE FRIDAY

To Speak in Dillon Gym. Congressman William E. Miller, Republican candidate for Vice-President, will give an address in Princeton University's Dillon Gymnasium on Friday at 1:45 p.m. Mr. Miller's talk will be part of an all-day campaign swing through New Jersey which is scheduled to include five counties.

Tickets for Mr. Miller's speech, which is being sponsored by the Princeton University Young Republicans and the Whig-Closophic Society, are available at Republican Headquarters, 18 Nassau Street, and at Citizens for Goldwater - Miller offices, 217 Nassau. They also will be distributed at Whig Hall starting at noon Thursday.

Dillon Gym doors will open at 12:45 p.m. Friday, and tickets will be honored until 1:30 p.m. After that time, non-holders of tickets will be admitted.

Mr. Miller is the fourth major Republican leader to have visited the state during this year's campaign. The others are Senator Barry Goldwater.

In other campaign developments, former Republican State Chairman Charles R. Erdman of Princeton has been appointed chairman of a senior citizens' committee, and Assembly Speaker Alfred N. Beadleston has been named to head a GOP drive to canvass New Jersey on behalf of the Goldwater-Miller ticket.

According to GOP State Chairman Webster B. Todd, the Goldwater - Miller campaign in New Jersey has accelerated at a fast pace this week. "We believe that on Election Day our 17 electoral votes will be in Senator Goldwater's column," says Mr. Todd.

Employment Next. The second in a series of four programs on Princeton will be presented this Sunday at 10:30 a.m. on the CBS television program, "Look Up and Live."

The program presents 32 Princeton residents of varying backgrounds, and offers their comments to a panel of three: Edward A. Dowey Jr., professor of the history of Christian doctrine at the Seminary; the Rev. Albert Tysan, pastor of Mt. Pisgah Church, A.M.E.; and as moderator, Herbert Hobler.

Residents appearing on the program will be asked such questions as "Why are so few Negroes employed where you work?" "Why do some people object when members of minority groups work in the same office or shop with them?"

Next Sunday, November 1, the panel will discuss schools and on Sunday, November 8, poverty.

THE CAMPAIGN

"If re-elected to the Township Committee on November 3—or as a private citizen if I am not returned to office—I pledge to do my level best to advance whatever engineering or legal stops that are available to us to persuade or force the state and federal agencies involved to take their roadway elsewhere," Mr. Wilson said.

In the Borough, Council Democratic candidates Nicholas J. Bartolino and Enoch J. Durbin, continue to charge their opponents with silence on the presidential election, and with repudiation of a Princeton Human Rights Commission.

"Are they (the Republicans) for or against a community swimming pool? Are they for or against a supervised teenage canteen? Are they in favor of sitting down with the University authorities and producing overall building and traffic plans? We don't know, because they don't say."

The Democrats also charge that major issues are subject to "interminable" discussion at Council meetings "and practically always referred elsewhere to be referred back or held over and then held over again."

They also list the time-table of the joint committee on municipal operations, starting with the initial proposal by Mayor Henry Patterson on June 10, 1962, and pointing out that there is still no report, more than two years after the initial proposal, almost 18 months after the appointment of commission members, and more than 10 months after the announced deadline of December 1, 1963.

News Of The THEATRES

ON OR OFF?

Mr. Duncan Ponders. "My next move? Either to Broadway, or I stop." With off-Broadway at the beginning of a crucial year (only nine new shows opened there this year, compared to 15 a year ago), Princeton's off-Broadway producer, Stuart Duncan, finds himself in a crucial year as well.

"The Alchemist," Ben Jonson's rowdy commentary on human gullibility, is now joggling pleasantly along at The Gate Theatre under the imprimatur of Mr. Duncan and Edgar Lansbury.

Critics accepted the offering, even though they didn't burn incense before it ("The New Yorker" and the "Herald Tribune" were particularly joyful) and tickets are being sold steadily through January 1, an item of considerable interest in Princeton because Duncan-Lansbury had so many Princeton backers that on opening night, The Gate Theatre looked like Palmer Stadium.

Stuart Duncan is a young man (Princeton, '50) of boundless and explosive energy and enthusiasm, with an intuitive seat-of-the-pants feel for what will and will not "go" in the theatre.

He has really failed only once, with a disastrous production of Gertrude Stein's "Yes Is For a Very Young Man," and the consensus is that Gertrude is really the one who failed.

Number Four "Alchemist" is his fourth off-Broadway production. ("Under the Sycamore Tree," Bernard Shaw's "Misalliance," and Miss Stein.) Actually, his first theatrical adventure was off-Broadway: the heavy in "The Heir and the Thirder of Danny Disher," in Ridgefield, Conn., when he was 14.

"I was shy. (Mr. Duncan's acquaintances will be startled to learn) "so I took up acting." He has never really let it go. From then on, it was Theatre Intime, "in the Golden Days of '48, '49, '50 with Karl Light and Bob Chapman, who adapted 'Billy Budd';" guest appearances in Miss Fine's School plays, drama coaching at The Gannery, where he taught after graduation, and a term as business manager of the 1953 revival of the University Players.

"University Players used more and more pros and became more and more professional," Mr. Duncan recalls, "and producing in New York was a natural outgrowth of what I did here with the Players."

"Sycamore Tree" came along in 1958. Mr. Duncan chose "Misalliance" because the Players had done it here under Phil Minor and it seemed like a good thing to take to New York. It had a long run and

MR. DUNCAN PRODUCES: A cool business head combined with a warm heart in love with the theatre, have made Stuart Duncan a successful off-Broadway producer. (He acts, too: remember Captain Andy in last spring's "Showboat?") is the biggest Duncan success so far.

Private Lives. Meanwhile between the acts, so to speak, Mr. Duncan had been trying to avoid going into the family business, which is Lea and Perrins.

"Teaching was great, and I might have been a college teacher, but teaching in a prep school is rough, really rough. One-third of the boys I taught at The Gannery are now teachers themselves and I feel pretty good about that."

Also, as an undergraduate on loan to Miss Fine's for a part in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," Mr. Duncan had set some kind of precedent by falling in love with a 15-year-old sophomore. They waited until she was considerably older — 16 — to become engaged and were married two weeks after she graduated. Today, Nell Duncan is the mother of four, and a member of the fall company at McCarter Theatre.

When family pressure became irresistible, Mr. Duncan joined Lea and Perrins as secretary of the corporation and director of advertising and sales, and the family moved to Princeton as a natural home base for commuting and making theatrical forays.

On or Off? Now, where do we go? "Off-Broadway is going," Mr. Duncan believes. "Equity negotiators have said very bluntly that there is no reason why off-Broadway needs to exist, that it should be subsidized. Well, I don't believe in subsidized theatre. For me, it's either on to Broadway, or stop."

"Broadway doesn't scare me," Mr. Duncan explains, "but Broadway production is a full time job and I already have a full-time job!"

Stopping, so far as the theatre is concerned, is an inconceivable concept. Mr. Duncan's theatrical instincts are too strong and sound for such a ridiculous idea; however, the format may well change.

"Getting undergraduates in from various universities for a kind of off-Broadway is one idea," he says. "Princeton is an ideal place for a summer — Continued on Page 6 set-up of that kind, maybe using the new Day School theatre. And my association with Edgar Lansbury has strong possibilities. . .

In any case, the shy young man who now has a credit of three off-Broadway successes out of four tries, is not likely to lock the door and turn out the house lights.

THREE ON ONE
Touts, Bookies, Molls. The cast of characters — and McCarter emphasizes "characters" — in "Three Men on a Horse" includes such noteworthy individuals as a nag-picked husband who knows how to pick the nags, a mean and tightly wadded boss and a hairy brother-in-law.
To say nothing of aficionados of the track and their lady friends. The show, a 1939's farce by George Abbott and John Cecil Holm, will open at McCarter this Friday at 8:30, playing again, on Saturday at the same time.

Meanwhile, "Boo!" That annual Halloween horror film clutch will play McCarter next Wednesday, October 28, at 8 p.m.
A triple-scoop of horror, the bill includes the original silent version of "Phantom of the Opera," with Lon Chaney, made in 1925, and for many years considered the top chill in horror films.
Second in line will be "Horror of Dracula" in living — if that's the word — color. Peter Cushing is the thirsty count.

...LET'S TAKE THE LONG WAY HOME: Walter Matthau, as an important political scientist, finds Nancy Berg waiting for him to take her home after a party. From "Fail Safe," now at The Prince and the Playhouse.

In between, McCarter will show Salvatore Dali's "Andalusian Dog" the first surrealist film. This is the picture with that sequence involving a razor blade slicing through an eyeball. Makes Dracula look like Doris Day.

MATINEE FOR MILLER
Another "Death." To accommodate school teachers in the Princeton area who have been unable to bring their classes to McCarter for "Death of a Salesman," the theatre will present a special matinee of the Miller play Saturday at 2:30.

Tickets will be $2.50 in the orchestra and $2 in the balcony. After this Saturday, "Death of a Salesman" will play only once more — on Saturday, October 31, at 8:30.

PLAYHOUSE AND PRINCE
Fail Safe, (through Tuesday) is not unlike a quick re-issue of "Dr. Strangelove." Small wonder. When "Fail Safe" was published in 1962, its plot was peculiarly similar to the 1958 novel on which "Dr. Strangelove" is based.

Anyway, crib job or not, "Fail Safe" on film is a fright (flight of atomic fantasy which is deliberately designed to scare hell out of you — and probably will for at least the first hour. It shows what might happen if a Strategic Air Command computer ever got its wires crossed. A swingin' holocaust, man, that's what.

The ending is pretty silly: the President of the U. S. yonks an H-bomb on New York as an Alphonse-Gaston apology for the H-bomb lobbed over to Moscow. But, in general, "Fail Safe" is scary enough to terrify anyone who is not already scared enough by things the way they are. Happy nightmares, children!

THE GARDEN
The Visit (through Tuesday) is about a rich bitch — both noun and adjective fit precisely — who returns to her native village with a strange offer. That is: "I'll give you two million bucks if you guys will kill the so-and-so who first done me wrong."

In the play, by Friedrich Durrenmatt, the so-and-so is killed. In the movie, he gets a reprieve. This one change in the drama has the unhappy effect of weakening M. Durrenmatt's mordant point about the easy adjustable morality and corruptibility of mankind.

But, except for that and an awkward beginning in which the picture seems to be groping for a style, "Visit" is good enough drama. The casting, though, is something else again. Ingrid Bergman as the vengeful moneybags? Anthony Quinn as the aging frightened victim of her wrath? Impossible, but true.

TO PRESENT "ONDINE"
At Miss Fine's School. The Dramatic Club of Miss Fine's School will present as its annual production, "Ondine," a romantic fantasy by Jean Giraudoux, with public performances scheduled for next Friday and Saturday, October 30 and 31 at 8:30. It will be performed with the cooperation of a number of Princeton University undergraduates.

Karen Fraser will play the role of Ondine, other leading parts by Susan Siegel and Julia Lockwood. Others in the cast are Kitz Becker, Linda Baker, Marjorie Cuyler, Susan Bonthron, Gillian Gordon, Ann Hughey, Barbara Sullivan and Peggy Woodridge. From the University, cast members are Bartow Farr, Edward Keeple, David Bandler, James Sisseron, Mair Atherton, Richard Handelsman, James Mount, Paul Rodzianko and John Gibbs.

IT'S NEW To Us

WHO'S A HAIRY APE?
Not Me, I'm a Zombie! The most endearing costume for the fall season is one we saw on our annual tour of Zinder's Halloween wardrobe room, the costume that comes in a box marked "Dracula—small."

For all of Princeton's small vampires, then, we recommend Zinder's. The ultimate in haute couture, my dear, the ultimate. Here you may examine the Wolfman outfit, the Hairy Ape ensemble and that wonderfully versatile garment called Costume "Jama, so designed that you can wear it off to bed when the party's over.

Costume "Jama comes in Fluffy Bunny, Little Devil, Pussycat, Teddy Bear, each with mask. Real pajamas, mommy; real.

Lest you think, however, that everything is cuddly bunnies at Zinder's let us show you around. The rubber masks have come out of their cobwebby hiding places, ready for 1964: gorilla, a babe with pendulant cigarette, a peachy one in lime, yellow and peach blobs — you know the breed.

There's a mask like those weirdos the kids have been making out of model kits, and a Troll doll mask that's sure to be sure-fire, and Frankenstein's monster, a dear old perennial favorite. Almost makes for a nostalgic tear to see him back again.

We know you'll want the Monster make-up (mostly ghoulish green) and the 59c theatrical kit with nose putty, a mustache stick, and other fine accessories. Black vampire finger nails are devastating with that Dracula costume (small).

and the false teeth are good with anything.
Cuts, bruises and warts will be along in time for Halloween, although they hadn't arrived when we were at Zinder's. Takes a while to brew them up in the cauldron, you know.

Wig wearers can get a Beatie wig, obviously, and a Dutch girl wig, an Indian wig, an Old Maid wig (gray, parted in the middle), and a witch wig. (Can you say "witch wig" fast 13 times?)

Actually, we never finished with these costumes. All four Beattles have their own Costume and mask: Ringo! Paul! John! George! Granny! Paul! the "Beverly Hillsbillies" is alongside Ludwig von Drake and a couple of real gleamers — the Golden Sultan and the Golden Panther. Superman comes in — what else? — large sizes 12-14. So does the Bride of Frankenstein. Cleopatra comes in all sizes because every woman is Cleopatra.

For Halloween parties, there is Hallmark's pumpkin centerpiece, a green cardboard witch and an ingratiating scarecrow. Barton's Halloween candies will fill up all the guests. Foil-wrapped pumpkin, owl and pussycat ride in the same box. A pumpkin - head wearing a witch hat has a cluster of lollypops on its broomstick.

Zinder's real favorite, year after year, is an orange-black striped old-fashioned jersey bathing suit. Know who buys it? Of course. Undergraduates. Even in December. Can't keep 'em in stock.

FROM MARIA'S NEELES

Hand Designed Knits. A designer-knitter named Maria Allegra sits in her atelier just outside Spoleto, in Italy, designing and then knitting one-of-a-kind garments for the new little Maria Allegra Shop at 2 Chambers.

She also distributes her clothes in various selected shops in Europe, but in this country, the Chambers Street shop is her sole outlet. She will even make up, to your order, something you've seen in a magazine and would like to have for yourself. Just outline your request to the shop and allow about three weeks for delivery.

Let's take a variation on the knit stitch and turn first to a dressy knit, for after five, or even after nine. It's black wool, knit in an open shell pattern with scalloped hemline

We Want Willie!

Campaign buttons going back farther than American History I are now on view in the windows of Saks Fifth Avenue, lent by Lyell Henry of Skillman.

Do you remember Strom Thurmond's running mate? Neither did we. Wright's the name, with a button to prove it. Here's "Tariff Reform and Sound Money" from 1892, and a very dignified presentation of Woodrow Wilson. "Our Friend, William Randolph Hearst" is a good one, and so is "Draft Eisenhower!"

William Jennings Bryan crops up, year after year, and here's good old Adlai Stevenson, looking a lot younger. Campaign literature is in the window, next to the buttons, and you'll examine with particular interest the 1920 Democratic Textbook with FDR in high, stiff collar on the cover.

Know our favorite? "Henry Zipp for Commissioner of Public Works." There was a MAN!

and a silk lining of bright turquoise that just manages to show provocatively through the openwork of the knit stitches. Still lingering after dark, we come to a mohair cape, full length, knit in powder blue or cherry with a double-breasted effect.

This cape, at $105, represents the general price range of the shop. A light-weight woolen dress, unlined, with one-inch knit band around the neckline, elbow sleeves and a slim sash, is $60, but most of the dress ensembles and three piece suits hover fore and aft of $100.

A sand-color sheath clean as a sea wind, goes under a sand mohair jacket which is the precise match in color. Buttonless, the jacket has one scarf to fling around the throat and over one shoulder.

Bronze wool makes a sleeveless dress banded with dark brown: two hands around the hemline, others around armholes and neck. The jacket has a toggle closing that reveals the brown neckline edge.

An unusual triangle closing marked with three buttons characterizes a tomato red suit with black sleeveless popover, and a three-quarter "walking" jacket in Dior blue is the quietly tailored last word in a three-piece suit for $125.

MUSIC!
Ready, Kids? Benjamin Britten's "Simple Symphony," the Mozart Divertimento for Strings (K.136, for musicologists in the audience) part of the Rach Third Brandenburg Concerto and a portion of the Schubert "Trout" Quintet with Edward Cone at the piano, will constitute the program of the young People's Concert scheduled for this Saturday at 11 a.m. in McCarter.

Baroque Jam. Not a note has been changed in the fugues, toccatas, airs and gavottes of Bach and other Baroque composers sung in jazz arrangements by the Swingle Singers, due in McCarter Theatre next Tuesday at 8:30. It's the heat that does it.

"Ballet '64." Twelve leading dancers from the San Francisco Ballet make up the "Ballet '64" company which will come to McCarter Theatre on Sunday, November 1 at 3 p.m. as McCarter's only autumn dance event. Tickets now on sale.

The repertoire of "Ballet '64" features ballets in the classic manner, and new choreography by contemporary dancers.

CONC IN PREMIERE
Violin Concerto. Edward Cone's violin concerto was originally written in 1958 for a small rehearsal orchestra. But the orchestra did not survive its first season, and so the performance of Mr. Cone's concerto Monday by the Princeton Symphony Orchestra and the Israeli violinist, Yfrah Neuman, will essentially be the premiere of the work.

The concert will be given in McCarter at 8:30 as the first in the orchestra's 1964 - 65 series. Nicholas Harsanyi will conduct.

The orchestra will also play Dvorak's Fourth Symphony and the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro."

FOR THE KEYBOARD
Young Pianist to Play. Louis Nagel, graduate student at the Juilliard School of Music and 1964 Artist Award winner, will give a piano recital in Wilcox Hall Friday at 7:30 under the auspices of the Woodrow Wilson Society.

Mr. Nagel's program will consist of Schubert's Sonata in A Minor, Opus 42; Debussy's "Homage a Rameau" and "L'Isle Joyeuse," Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" and Balakirev's "Islamey Fantasy."

MUSIC IN FOUR SCENES
Opera Association. A dozen singers from Princeton and environs will present four operatic scenes this Friday at 8:30 when the Princeton Opera Association repeats several offerings that were first sung this summer in Trenton and New Brunswick. The place: the Playhouse, Westminster Choir College.

Muriel Long, Mary Ecroyd, Woodward Waesche, Jesse Coston and Jamison Gill will sing the first scene from Mozart's "Così fan Tutte."

Mr. Waesche, Jack Lanning, Virginia Cole, Nancy Jackson and Mr. Coston will sing the third act of Verdi's "Don Carlo," and after intermission, Janise Kurz and Mr. Gill will sing the first act of Puccini's "La Bohème."

A portion, in English, of Gian-Carlo Menotti's "Old Maid and the Thief" will be sung by Noreen Barnes, Miss Princeton Symphony Orchestra, and the Israeli violinist, Yfrah Neuman, will essentially be the premiere of the work.

The Association's Artistic Director, will accompany.

French for Me. A new bakery in Lawrenceville is the answer for homemakers who like home-baked bread so long as they don't have to bake it themselves. Robert Steuben, 25 years a baker in Germany, is the baker-proprietor.

The shop is on Gordon Avenue, just off the Lawrenceville Road right after you reach the town of Lawrenceville from Princeton. There's a bright new red barn with the bakery on one side and a barber on the other, one block before you get to the traffic blinker.

Mr. Steuben specializes in wedding and "special-occasion" cakes done to a fine and twirling turn by his "experienced hand." He also does painstaking work on French pastries made to order, and for either the pastries or the cakes, he asks a couple of days' notice, if you please?

We found pumpernickel, black and rich, good white home-made bread, and those "star" patterned hard rolls called "Kaiser rolls." Jewish rye and soft rolls, too, all made right there in the bakery.

Want a whipped cream roll with cherry or chocolate whipped cream? Cherry, apple, blueberry, pineapple, pumpkin pie?

How would you like to try a pastry with cherries, rather like a combination eucalyptus? Mr. Steuben puts it next to the Danish pastries, so we assume it's rather like them in texture and genre.

The orange or coconut crunch eucalyptus would make a sweet ending for tonight's dinner; the brownies or the toll-house cookies would be great for an after-school snack.

But we're waiting until you order some of that French pastry.

JULLIARD PLAYS

In Series II Opener, On Monday night the Julliard Quartet performed at McCarter Theater in the first concert of Series II for the 1964-65 season. The members of the quartet are Robert Mann, violin, Isadore Cohen, violin, Raphael Hillyer, viola and Claus Adam, violoncello. The program consisted of Haydn's Opus 103 Fragment, the Quartet in A Minor, Opus 51, NO. 2 by Brahms and the Complete string quartet music of the contemporary Viennese composer, Anton Webern; namely his Five Movements for String Quartet, Opus 5, the Six Bagatelles, Opus 9 and the String Quartet, Opus 28.

This was, to say the least, an unorthodox concert program. On the surface it would appear a commendable act on the part of the Julliard group to educate its audiences to the music of Webern; music that is in some cases now over a half a century old but still considered by many to be strictly avant-garde. Unfortunately the theory did not succeed in practice, for the sum total of the three Webern works, played one after the other, only tended to alienate an already wary audience.

The opening piece of the program was an unfinished Quartet fragment in two movements, composed by Haydn in 1803. The music is not the best Haydn but nevertheless contains many interesting harmonic progressions and rhythmic ideas. It appears as if Haydn was reaching into new harmonic territory but was confined by the four-square structure of his earlier music limiting his adventures in the world of the mature Beethoven to mere excursions.

More Power: The playing of this music by the Julliard members tended to be on the dull side. Indeed, throughout the program and especially in the first two movements of the Brahms Quartet, one would have wished for more power and drive in their playing. The sound of the ensemble was lean, seldom spacious and occasionally not in tune, the cellist being the prime offender here in the lower register of his instrument. The playing simply did not jell as it has in past Julliard Quartet performances this reviewer has witnessed.

It seems that since the Julliard group first recorded the Bartok Quartets in 1959, they have attempted through the years to tone down their emotional approach, full of fire and energy of expression, to a style of playing more suited to the eighteenth century drawing room. Once criticized for playing Haydn like Bartok, they now suffer from playing Bartok like Haydn.

The whole trouble here is that every composer they perform is bound to suffer somewhat by this highly mannered and precious quality featured in so many of their interpretations, and though their overall standard of performance is still among the finest in the world today, somehow the expressiveness of the music they play leaves much to be desired.

A Masterpiece. The first set of Webern pieces was by far the most effective of the three, and probably one of the great masterpieces of the string quartet literature. Composed in 1909, it conveys the spirit of its decade in a most hauntingly beautiful way.

The Bagatelles, the analysts will tell you, are supposed to show Webern in transition while the Quartet, Opus 28, composed during the late thirties, finds the Viennese master attaining maturity in his art.

All this may very well be true but this reviewer found a steady decline in the overall quality of the quartets from the Op 5 through the Opus 28. Much of this music is extremely soft, and heard in the vast boundaries of McCarter Theatre, much of its impact may have been lost despite a brilliant performance.

The Brahms Quartet concluded the program. And what can one say? It is marvelous, a Romantic Quartet writing at times suffering from rhythmic monotony, but almost always saved from total disaster by Brahms' melodic and harmonic genius. More exciting playing would have benefited this work which was given a clean but otherwise lackluster reading. —Arno Safran

FINE ORCHESTRA DEBUT
Tuesday at McCarter, A magnificent new musical organization has been born. It is the Princeton Chamber Orchestra and it made its major Princeton debut Tuesday night at McCarter Theater as the first performing group in a new series of musical events to be known as "Music at McCarter."

The orchestra is basically a string ensemble composed of 21 players. Its musical director is Nicholas Harsanyi.

In a very short period, Mr. Harsanyi has fashioned a well-disciplined body of professional musicians into a marvelous-sounding structure that is likely to stir the souls of music lovers in this area for years to come. For this first concert, the orchestra was augmented to include woodwind and brass. The program consisted of works by Carl Phillip Emanuel Bach, Stravinsky, Mozart and Elgar. Eugene Istinov was the featured soloist in Mozart's Piano Concerto No 24 in C Minor, K. 491.

The Concerto for Orchestra by C. P. E. Bach, arranged for orchestra by Maximilian Steinf-berg from an obscure setting for four violas, is probably not a very familiar work to Princeton concert-goers. Indeed there is even some doubt as to who the creator of the music really was.

The first two movements are very attractive, though at times the winds doubling and certain inner voice parts betray the hand of a later composer, perhaps the arranger, who might have left well enough alone. The orchestra, from the start demonstrated a distinct awareness for clean playing and clarity of line. However, the best of the concert was to come with the performance of the following work, Stravinsky's ballet, "Apollon Musagete."

For many years "Apollon" had reigned as one of the great enigmas of Stravinsky's art. Composed years after the "Rite of Spring," it must have created a reverse sensation to those expecting Stravinsky to continue or return to the path he had taken in the several dynamic works of his "Russian" period preceding the 1920s.

In "Apollon," one finds Stravinsky in his most "classical" phase. The work, scored for string orchestra, may not be one of his greatest works, but it is a masterpiece, nevertheless.

Throughout its 25 minute course, it travels through the grandeur of a Lully or Gluck Overture style, through Rossini, Tchaikowsky and French 19th century ballet to the "Charleston" of the roaring twenties, and then back to the Baroque grandeur from which it started. The hand of Stravinsky is sure throughout despite these stylistic excursions which give the work its essence and character.

Mr. Harsanyi led the orchestra in a truly masterful interpretation. The intonation was —Continued on Page 11 superb and the string sonorities were transparently clear. There was some fine playing in the solo passages also particularly that of Helen Kwakwaser, the concertmistress of the orchestra.

Following the intermission, Eugene Istomin appeared as guest soloist with the orchestra for a reading of the Mozart concerto mentioned earlier. The performance was not up to Mr. Istomin's usual high standard.

One felt however that much of the problem lay with the keyboard instrument Mr. Istomin was compelled to use. First of all, it was out of tune with the orchestra, and secondly, it displayed a very muffled sound throughout its middle register.

The upper register was not very strong and its lowest notes seemed almost indistinguishable from one another in the faster passages. The music itself is very good Mozart, but coming after two works couched in the classical mold, it proved to this reviewer, at any rate, a piece of inadequate programming.

The concluding work of the evening was a performance of Elgar's Introduction and Allegro for String Quartet and String Orchestra. It is a surprisingly fine work and coupled with the same composer's better known "Enigma Variations" for orchestra, it makes one curious to hear more of the composer's output. The Princeton Chamber Orchestra gave a strong performance of this work, again displaying its general high standard but with added vigor and power in its time and expressiveness.

It was a night to remember. Congratulations, McCarter!

next Wednesday in Community Park School. Mrs. E. Alden Dunham and Mrs. George Field are co-chairmen; Mrs. Stephen Kidd is voters' service chairman.

A similar session is set by the Montgomery Township unit for 8:15 p.m. next Thursday in Harlingen Reformed Church Hall, Route 206 and Dutchtown Road. There will be brief talks by candidates for Freeholder and Somerset County Sheriff. Mrs. Earl Tanner, past president of the Princeton League, will be moderator. Mrs. Thomas Lies is chairman.

Lost Anything?

A bomb perhaps. A Township patrol car found a blue, 100-pound practice bomb on Van Dyke Road at 3:30 Tuesday morning.

It is believed to be the type used by the Air Force and was unloaded. Police report they have no idea how it got there.

NO FINAL RINSE

Car Wash Amended. Four suggestions from the Planning Board served to halt the car wash machinery in Princeton Township Monday night as Committee decided to incorporate the suggestions into its new ordinance as amendments and hold a new public hearing on November 2.

The ordinance would amend zoning regulations to allow auto laundries on Lower Alexander Street. The amendments refer to lot size, a stand-by water supply, provision for a grit and grease chamber and specified detergents and designation of auto laundries as a "permitted use."

Seymour Montgomery, speaking for A. S. Blodgett Jr., William Bonthron, Mrs. George Young, Marshall Dana and David Buchanan, who want to finance a Princeton auto laundry, told Committee that his group and the car wash company that would supply the equipment, disapproved heartily and fully of Alexander Street as a car wash location.

"A car wash must be on Route 206 where the traffic is and the cars are," Mr. Montgomery said. "The service area along 206 should be developed to its full potential by providing public sewer and water up there. This would be expensive, but the increase in rateables might pay for the investment in two or three years. Sewerage and water would open up residential properties in that area that cannot be developed. Alexander Street just won't support a car wash."

Whither Alexander? Mayor William L. Wilsoo said he knew of two "substantial business interests" that liked the idea of a car wash on Lower Alexander, and he reminded Mr. Montgomery that a "yes" to laundries on Alexander was not the final and irrevocable word on car washing in Princeton Township.

"Alexander will be a major artery itself," Committeeman John O. Green observed, and Township Engineer Frank Quinby added that in five or ten years, Alexander would be widened and re-aligned to provide the University with its main entry road "The Master Plan calls for an eventual width of 60 feet for Alexander," Mr. Quinby said.

And Mayor Wilson told Mr. Montgomery that heavy traffic was one of the chief reasons the Township did not want a car wash on Route 206.

"If you don't think there's much traffic on Alexander, make your count during commuting hours," Mr. Green suggested.

Mayor Wilson said that Committee would meet with Borough Council, library trustees and Thaddeus Longstreth, architect of the new library, this Thursday night to talk over the library's preliminary plans.

NINE ARE FINED

In Princeton Courts, Nine Princeton area residents were fined last week in Magistrate's Court, six in the Borough and three in the Township.

Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr. fined Alfred H. Mason, 18, 327 Nassau Street, and David P. Hillington, 100 Broadhead each $15 for improper display of plates. Raymond C. Furt Jr., 26 173 Ewing Street, and Bertram Wellman, 61, Pennington-Air Rose Road, Pennington, were fined $22 and $15 for speeding.

Claude Moore, 24, of Highway 27 paid two fines: $25 for driving with an invalid driver's permit and $15 for a noisy muffler. In criminal court, Robert Neal, 37, 104 Leigh Avenue, was ordered to pay $10 a week to the complainant in a bastardy case.

For driving while on a revoked list, Gibson Delancy, 18, 315 Franklin Avenue was fined $205 by Township Magistrate James S. Hill. Ralph L. Jackson, 19, 644 State Road, paid a total of $60 in fines. He was charged with careless driving and as an unlicensed driver.

Paul J. St. George, 51, 448 Ewing Street, appeared in answer summonses of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident, both stemming from an accident on Terhune Road. Magistrate Hill revoked his license 90 days and fined him a total of $60.

EIGHT DRIVERS HALTED

Under State Motor Laws, Eight Princeton area drivers have had their licenses suspended by the Division of Motor Vehicles.

Fred B. Campbell, 18, 293 Franklin Avenue; Archibald C. Elias Jr., 20, 301 Hamilton Hall, Princeton University; Joseph J. Daelwyler, 45, 185 Harrison Street, and Edward B. Pomianowski, Jr., 17, 26 Prospect Street, Plainboro, each lost his license for 30 days for speeding. John L. Moorshead, 42, New Brunswick Pike, was grounded for one month, after being convicted of speeding in Connecticut under a reciprocity agreement.

Three lost licenses under the Point System. They are Timothy C. Huizing, 23, Washington Street, Rocky Hill, three months; Wallace L. Floyd, 21, Cranbury, 45 days; and Howard L. Calkin, 26, The Great Road, one month.

THEFT REPORT

U Store Hard Hat, thieves with sticky fingers reached out last week in several places in Princeton and came up with their hands full. Profitable gains were made at the expense of the Princeton University Store and University dormitories.

The U Store reported a TV set missing from an unloading platform located at the rear of the store. It was one of eight that had been delivered in a shipment. An official of the store also told Borough police that between October 7-12, two TV sets, two tape recorders and two radios—all of them portable—had been taken with a combined value of $1076.

Over a period of four days came reports last week from the University of articles taken from Laughlin, Lockart.

Hamilton and Blair Halls. Among the items were a portable TV set, $150; a typewriter, $100; a watch, $60; a transistor radio, $50; and a clock radio, $45. A portable tape recorder and a second typewriter were also taken but police said no value had been attached to them.

On Sunday, Frederick Klink, superintendent of the Princeton Water Company, told police that someone had jimmied the rear door of its office at 195 Nassau Street, stolen $4.80 from his desk drawer and then walked out the front door, Sgt. Michael Kopliner investigated.

From South's Garage, 2 Nassau Street, someone stole a portable car top for a Thunderbird owned by John A. Croll, 113 Westerly Road. No value for the top was given.

From another Thunderbird, owned by Norman R. Hostler, 154 N. Harrison Street, someone first cut a 12-inch slash in the car's convertible top and then rifled the glove compartment, taking two books of green stamps and a book of tickets for the Morrisville toll bridge. The car was parked in the owner's driveway, police said.

Martini Caper. A car parked in the driveway of its owner, John Graham, 48 Linden Lane, yielded a melange of items with a total value of $50. Among them were a car blanket, a raincoat, a track warm-up suit, a belt, a towel, a fifth of vermouth, a half-gallon of gin and a bottle of Spanish olives. The theft took place sometime Monday evening.

Unluckiest of all was Mrs. William Meredith, 6 Greenhouse Drive. Sometime Sunday night, someone stole her car—a 1960 station wagon. The keys? They were in the ignition.

The Graduate School was not overlooked again. Borough Police received two calls last week, one reporting a wallet containing between $20 and $25 stolen from a room. The victim reported seeing a suspicious youth in the area shortly before the Friday evening theft, while he was showering.

Most recently "hit" was the Ohal Garden Market, 262 Alexander Street, where thieves pocketed rolls of change totaling $30. The theft occurred sometime between Monday evening and Tuesday morning, according to Walter Obal, who reported it.

Police said entry was gained by breaking a window pane and unlocking the window. Once inside, the thief ransacked all office drawers but ignored adding machines and typewriters. Police quoted Mr. Obal as saying that three days earlier an attempt had been made to enter via the same window but he did not report it.

School Takes Over Land

After three years of negotiation, the Borough Board of Education signed on October 14 the final papers giving the Board the land on Walnut Lane where the new Borough School will be built.

Ground-breaking will probably be early in November, according to Dr. Chester R. Stroup, superintendent of schools. Ten general contractors entered construction bids and so did six plumbing firms, six steel contractors, eight heating experts and eight electricians. The architect is now reviewing all of them.

Closing ceremonies were attended by Dr. Lee Bristol, president of Westminster Choir College, from which the land was purchased; Graham Rohrer, president of the Board of Education; William Miller, attorney for the Board; Frank Reiche, attorney for Westminster and Dr. Stroup.

ton boys, all age 14, have been reported missing by their parents since Friday.

Township Police said the boys were Adam Hammer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hammer, 67 Locust Lane; Christopher Bush, son of Mrs. Helma Bush, 391 Nassau Street; and Peter Pyne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Insley B. Pyne, 54 Russell Road. Hammer and Bush are students at Princeton Country Day School.

Police report they were first alerted at 12:15 a.m. Friday when Mrs. Hammer called to say her son was missing. Police added that a 13-state alarm has been sounded for the boys, who are believed to have headed for Greenwich Village in New York City.

CAR TEARS UP FENCE

On Quaker Road, Robert L. Ferguson, 17, of Springfield, N.J., and two passengers from Trenton, were slightly injured Saturday afternoon at 1 when Ferguson's car went out of control on Quaker Road. The car tore up about 25 feet of rail fence owned by the Township before coming to rest against a tree.

Mr. Ferguson, charged with careless driving, received a contusion of the left ear. Ralph Orland, 16, was treated for abrasions of the head and James Swift, 16, for a sprained right ankle.

According to the police report, Ferguson's car started to swerve on rain-slicked Quaker Road, just after he passed a curve near Squatter's Grove. Then the youth lost all control of his car. He was reported as saying he didn't remember anything until his head hit the window and his car came to rest against a tree. The entire left front end of his 1963 Thunderbird was damaged.

PUBLIC HEARING SET
On Township Report. "Unanimously and without substantive reservation," the Township Board of Education moved on Thursday night to accept the report of its Citizens Committee on School planning.

However, the Board will not vote on its resolution until it has held a public hearing on the report. The hearing will be held Monday, November 23 at 5 p.m., Community Park School.

"We are deeply anxious to get any judgements, opinions or otherwise, from citizens of the Township," stated Richard Pearson, president of the Board, after Mrs. Richard Schuch had read the 11-page proposed resolution accepting the Committee report.

In its resolution the Township Board states that its "first commitment . . . must be the pursuit of the joint study of Borough and Township school systems, and adds that the Board "will take no independent action until the two Boards (Borough and Township) have determined whether or not they can make joint recommendations to the community."

By January, 1965, however, the Township Board will be ready to "take appropriate action on the recommendations made in the Citizens' Report," including, presumably, the question of an independent high school for Princeton Township.

Count Down. Township relations to the Borough high school took an amusing turn on Thursday night when John McKenna, Township superintendent, informed the Board that the high school, presumably red with embarrassment, has wiped from its rolls 34 phantom Township boys and girls.

At the beginning of the fall semester, the high school reported a population of 667 Township residents. Dr. McKenna was staggered. He hadn't counted on nearly that many, and the Township tuition budget only provided for 659. He asked for a recount, and when the IBM machine went to work a second time, it turned up only 643 honest-to-goodness Township students at Princeton high.

"Amounts to about $25,000 in tuition," Dr. McKenna said, feelingly.

He told the Board that since September 17, when he last reported on school population, 26 more boys and girls have enrolled in Township schools. This is the equivalent of one full class, Dr. McKenna said, and brings the Township School population to 2,138.

David Nydick, new assistant superintendent, is working out a perpetual census plan, including a cooperative reporting arrangement with real estate agents, birth reports from the health department, and a census card which parents will fill out when they register a child.

An annual census was one of the recommendations of the Citizens Advisory Committee.

WE NEED MORE BEDS

In Princeton Hospital, two solariums in Princeton Hospital have been converted into wards of four beds each, adding eight beds to the total hospital capacity.

measure, that the medical-surgical section of the hospital had averaged 92% attendance since October 1, and occasionally had spurted up to 99%.

Solariums are ordinarily used as lounges and television rooms by ambulatory patients. The only alternative to beds in the solarium, Mr. Kauffman said, would be beds in the halls.

A new patient care wing, known as the "J" wing, will ease the tight bed count, but it is the final part of the hospital's current $4 million expansion program, and cannot be built, Mr. Kauffman pointed out, until the successful completion of the three-year fund-raising campaign, now entering its second year.

"GUERNSEY" TO BE OPEN

For Christmas Boutique, The drawing rooms, library dining salon and foyers of Guernsey Hall on Lovers Lane, will provide the setting for a Christmas Boutique to be held November 3, 4 and 5 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., benefiting the Princeton Hospital Building Fund.

The Women's Auxiliary of Princeton Hospital, sponsors of the Boutique, has made arrangements with several specialty shops from Connecticut to Florida to open "shops" for three days as part of the Boutique. Volunteers will model the clothing and accessories from these shops.

In addition, there will be a corner devoted to Christmas decorations and wrappings, and a "Princeton Room" where purchasers may examine petit-point, crewel and other needlework.

Guernsey Hall, now the property of Robert Moyer, was built about 1850 for Richard Stockton Field, who christened the house "Fieldwood." Alan P. Marquand, Princeton's first professor of art and archaeology, bought the house in 1957 and named it for the Isle of Guernsey, home of his ancestors.

ONE VOTE FOR GOLDWATER; ONE FOR JOHNSON:
Although both Frank Raymond (left) and Russell Chamberlain think Johnson will win the election in November, Mr. Raymond makes it clear that he would prefer to see Goldwater the victor. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: Who do you think will win the election in November and why?

Where asked: Around town.

Frank Raymond, Quaker Road, employee Behren's Moving and Storage: I think Johnson is going to win but I'd like to see Goldwater take it. We haven't had a good man running for president since Eisenhower. When Goldwater says something he's a man of his word. It's as simple as that. I agree with him when he says charity begins at home. We have millions of people starving right here in the United States. Goldwater has a lot of points for the people. I think we need a change.

Russell Chamberlain, N. Long Branch, Bohren's Moving and Storage: Johnson. I feel he's a better man for the United States than Goldwater any day. Goldwater is all for war; it takes a man to keep the country out of war. Johnson is more straight-forward; Goldwater beats around the bush too much — you never know where he stands with all the conflicting statements he makes. I also think Goldwater is too sure of himself.

Mrs. Rose Knight, English-town, employee Mettler Instrument Company, 20 Nassau Street: I believe Johnson is going to win by a terrific margin. I think his record's been good and he's got a good running mate in Senator Humphrey. I heard Humphrey speak at Princeton and it was almost a non-political talk. He directed it toward Woodrow Wilson and the University. All in all, I think the Democrats have a good program and I'm all for them.

David Harris, 20 Madison Street, graduate student: That's easy: Johnson. I think the public is behind him in his program and fears the personality of his opponent.

Harry Pfeleiderer, Trenton, welder: I'd like to see Goldwater get it myself because I like his views on civil rights but I doubt if he'll get it. . . he's made too many nutty statements. Johnson went about the campaign in the right way. He also has the advantage of being in office.

Joseph Fasanella Jr., 244 Alexander Street, employee, Matthews Construction: I think Goldwater will win because I feel the people are tired of false publicity, the administration saying one thing today and doing the opposite the next. Seems to be a double standard today: do one thing, say another. I'd like to see a change, definitely.

Mrs. Henry Robertiello, 34 Wilton Street, housewife: I sincerely hope it will be Johnson. I think he's done a good job since taking over from President Kennedy and I hope most voters will realize that . . . that they'll weigh his ability against Goldwater's.

Wilbur Green, Holmeson, mover for Bohren's: I believe Johnson's going to take it. Seems he's a little shrewder politician than Goldwater. Johnson lets Goldwater do all the pushing, shoving, and fighting and he just holds back taking the brunt of things. But when it's all said and done Goldwater just amounts to a lot of ranting.

Mike Seldner, 188 Grover Avenue, PHS student: I think Johnson will. First of all, anyone who thinks rationally must realize he is the best man for the job. After listening to Goldwater, I can't believe anyone would vote for him because you can easily see where there are contradictions in his statements.

Miss Marge Blossfeld, Westminster Choir College, sophomore: Johnson, definitely. He has a good record, he kept things going after the tragedy quite well, he's popular and he's for the people. There are some silly rumors against him but I don't agree with any of them. I read "A Texan Looks at Johnson" and I think J. Evetts Haley should be sued. Where did he get his facts? I didn't believe a word of it. Also, Goldwater's views on war are very dangerous. Some people seem to be taken in by his grand appearance, but I think Johnson can be just as imposing.

G. A. Brosamer, 41 Vandeventer, graduate student, I feel Johnson will win it. He's done well since taking over and I think the people don't want to take a chance on a change. I think the people trust Johnson more than they do Goldwater.

Victor A. Pinelli, 458 N. Harrison Street, student: It is my earnest belief Senator Barry Goldwater will win in November. I have no faith in political polls whatsoever: polls favor Johnson at this time but this time is not November third. To see a man of Senator Goldwater's stature, integrity and veracity is something to behold. Never will the course of political history see a man who is ready to bail a country out of bankruptcy and a policy of appeasement toward communism as is Senator Goldwater. A defeat for the Republican party will mean the repudiation of ideals that have made this country great and affluent; a vote for Johnson is a vote for a political schemer who believes in nothing but what is best for Lyndon Baines Johnson.

Joseph Brunett, Mount Holly, member of the trust department, Princeton Bank and Trust: I say President Johnson will win because of his superior experience in politics and because it seems to be that an incumbent always has a better chance. I believe there are a lot of voters who are going to switch but I don't feel it will have much effect because this is true of both parties and they will cancel each other out.

Mrs. Sigurd Nicolaysen, Cherry Valley Road, nursery school teacher: I think it will be a very close election. For a while, I thought that President Johnson would get it easily but now I'm not so sure. If you go by Princeton, I believe most here are pro-Johnson and strongly back his views. But it is hard to judge what the nation will do on the basis of our own town, and I think we tend to do this too much. I'd rather

Facts You Should Know About Oriental Rugs

SAROUK RUGS
Thick napped and solidly woven, the modern Sarouk is characterized by floral designs placed on a deep rose or blue background. A few are woven with an ivory or beige ground. The rugs are heavy and durable; many of them weigh more than 100 pounds in the nine-by-twelve-foot size. Two of the main design motifs in Sarouks are the Cypress Tree and the Vase. The floral designs are formed in colors of gold, green and blue blended to attain maximum harmony. While a preponderance of Sarouks are woven in the well covered fields and meditation centers, the open field Sarouk which consists of borders and corners surrounding plain or open fields of rose, beige, or blue have gained in prominence.

Not Senator Goldwater

Seven reasons why the following Princeton Republicans cannot vote for the Senator from Arizona, and urge you to join them in voting for President Johnson on November 3 while supporting and voting for the rest of the Republican ticket.

1. Senator Goldwater on Extremism.

"He [Joe McCarthy] was a faithful, tireless and conscientious American."

"Because Joe McCarthy lived, we are a safer, freer, more vigilant nation today."

[Speech to Wisconsin Republican State Convention, June 8, 1957]

"A lot of people in my home town, both Democrats and Republicans, have been attracted to it [the John Birch Society], and I am impressed by the type of people in it. They are the kind we need in politics."

[Remarks before Pepperdine College Freedom Forum, Los Angeles, Calif., March 29, 1961]

2. Senator Goldwater on Nuclear theory.

"I think that a general war is probable, I don't see how it can be avoided—perhaps five, ten years from now."

[Interview with Irwin Ross, New York Post, May 8, 1961.]

"I think it was the Germans who originated the modern concept of peace through strength."

[Press conference, Hershey, Pennsylvania, August 12, 1964]

"I hope the Administration will call for an immediate resumption of the [nuclear] tests. Frankly, I do not care what the rest of the world thinks about us..."

[Quoted in the Congressional Record, August 29, 1961, page 17346 of the permanent edition]

3. Senator Goldwater on the Economy.

"The graduated tax is a confiscatory tax. Its effect... is to redistribute the nation's wealth."

[“Conscience of a Conservative,” 1960]

"We are told, however, that many people lack skills and cannot find jobs because they did not have an education... The fact is that most people who have no skill, have no education for the same reason—low intelligence or low ambition."

[Speech to the Economic Club of New York, January 15, 1964]

4. Senator Goldwater on the United Nations.

"I have come to the reluctant conclusion that the United States no longer has a place in the United Nations." [Speech in Phoenix, Arizona, December 20, 1961.]

"Frankly, I think the fact that it [the United Nations] has proven to be unworkable is grounds enough for us to quit wasting our money on it."

[Interview with Hy Gardner, WOR-TV, New York City, May 12, 1963]

5. Senator Goldwater on Civil Rights.

"We're not going to get the Negro vote as a bloc in 1964 or 1968, so we ought to go hunting where the ducks are."

[Press conference at Republican Southern States Regional Conference, Atlanta, Georgia, November 18, 1961.]

"I am firmly convinced—not only that integrated schools are not required—but that the Constitution does not permit any interference whatsoever by the Federal Government in the field of education."

[“Conscience of a Conservative,” 1960.]

"It seems to me that the whole subject of ethnic and minority groups and their relationships within our society has been talked to death..."

[Letter declining participation in "All-American" conference of the Young Republican National Federation, released April 17, 1963.]

"No."

[Vote on Civil Rights Bill, 1964]

6. Senator Goldwater on the Supreme Court.

"I am... not impressed by the claim that the Supreme Court's decision on school integration is the law of the land."

[“Conscience of a Conservative,” 1960]

"The Supreme Court decision is not necessarily the law of the land."

[Interview with Eric Sevareid, "CBS Reports," March 8, 1962]

"I don't necessarily buy the idea that what the Supreme Court says is the law of the land... [The Court's decisions are] jackassian."

[Interview with Stewart Alsop, printed in The Saturday Evening Post, August 24-31, 1963.]

"I do not think any decision of the Supreme Court is necessarily the law of the land."

[Interview with The New York Times, printed on November 24, 1963]

7. Senator Goldwater on Foreign Affairs.

"I have always favored withdrawing recognition from Russia."

[Interview, U.S. News & World Report, September 2, 1963]

"We should, I believe, announce in no uncertain terms that we are against disarmament."

"I have consistently opposed summit meetings on the grounds that the only progress they can produce is progress toward Communist domination of the world."

[“Why Not Victory,” 1962]

"Any President should always be interested in negotiating—that's the way you end wars."

"I've thought for some time that talks with the Red Chinese might be profitable."

[Press conference aboard yacht Sundance, August 26, 1964.]

"The alliance system is completely defensive in nature and outlook. This fact, in the light of the Communists' dynamic offensive strategy, ultimately dooms it to failure."

[“Conscience of a Conservative,” 1960]

"The powers embraced by NATO, SEATO and OAS can form a great dam against the running tide of Communism."

[“Why Not Victory,” 1962]

Why I Plan to Vote Republican Democratic

By Helen P. Hanan

By Alan A. Williams

I will vote for Bernard M. Shanley for U.S. Senator on November third because I feel he holds all the qualifications needed for an excellent Senator.

Mr. Shanley has a background of experience in State National and international affairs that is seldom found. During the entire Eisenhower administration he held a number of key positions that brought him in close contact with national and world leaders. Among the important posts he filled were Special Counsel and Secretary to the President. In all these posts he was active in meetings with the Cabinet and the National Security Council and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He is a native New Jerseyan. During his lifetime in the State he has shown constantly his interest in local and state affairs. In recognition of his activities, he has received many awards. He was named the Outstanding Citizen of New Jersey by the Advertising Club of New Jersey. He was awarded the State Commander's Citation. Seton Hall University honored him with an honorary Doctor of Laws Degree.

Perhaps more important than his experience in Washington and his demonstrated civic interest, I am impressed by Mr. Shanley's statements of his beliefs. These beliefs show him to be a responsible, honest individual whose thoughts run counter to the "Great Society" or socialist thinking that is all too prevalent today among candidates for public office.

Mr. Shanley believes in supporting the right of the individual to make his own life and to improve himself as he sees fit. He supports our free enterprise system as the unique force that has made our country strong and has brought us all the comforts and wealth that so many politicians claim credit for. He wants to work toward building the strengths of the individual states as opposed to accelerating the trend toward centralized power in the hands of a few Washington politicians.

These beliefs indicate an important basic philosophy that is desperately needed in the United States Senate. We don't need any more of the opposite type thinking.

Thus, because of his experience, because of his interest in and knowledge of New Jersey, because of his basic American philosophy, I will vote for Bernard M. Shanley for U.S. Senator.

Nineteen forty-eight was the first year I was eligible to vote and although a registered Democrat (no relation to Sen. Williams), I have, like so many voters trying to be objective, often found reason to split a ticket. Humphrey vs. Ball (Minn.), Cashmore vs. Ives (N.Y.), Scott vs. Leader (Pa.), are a few examples of Senate races which caused the brow to furrow in advance and the hand to hesitate agonizingly at the lever.

Nor do I envy our New York neighbors in having to sort out the fine pros and cons of Kennedy vs. Keating. This year in New Jersey is sheer relief by comparison. This voter can bound to the booth with gusto and snap the lever for Senator Williams with unclouded conscience and total enthusiasm. Was there ever anywhere a clearer choice than that between Harrison Williams and his opponent?

On the one hand, we have a forthright, compassionate and intelligent public servant; on the other the willing captive of the Neanderthal forces which have turned this year's Republican Presidential candidacy into a sick elephant joke.

Harrison Williams needs no Parson Weems type campaign blurbs: his record, his frankness in replying to critics, and his honest concern for American values at their most positive best speak for themselves. Among the factors that make me profoundly pleased to vote for Pete Williams are:

1) His leadership in the Senate on such matters as Mass Transportation, and his stand there on Youth Vocational Educational Education and Employment and Hospital Care for the Aged. Here are the real "gut issues" of an urbanized state like ours.

Williams' opponent agonizes about the "stifling of free enterprise by a paternalistic government" — but when did he and a few of his "individualistic" friends and neighbors last try to get together to speed commuter trains or to set up a youth employment center? Pete Williams obviously knows that an urban society cannot be run like Brook Farm and he is doing something about it.

2) Senator Williams is keyed to the role of 20th century America in a world it did not make but which will come quickly unmade without it. Questions of foreign aid, the wheat sales, foreign loans and the Test Ban Treaty have all given him a chance to stand up for a tough minded and supple foreign policy geared to world realities and a thoughtful appreciation of the problems and the promise implicit in the position of the world's richest nation today. Contrast this with such squeaky demagogic assertions as that of Williams' opponent that "The Monroe Doctrine was thrown into the Bay of Pigs."

3) Like other mortals, Harrison Williams cannot walk on water, but unlike other politicians he does not evade tough questions. He talks frankly and persuasively about why he voted against college tuition tax relief, about the charge he is a rubberstamp follower of the Administration, and about his controversial votes for the oil depletion allowance and the cotton-wheat subsidies. Agree or not with a specific vote, such candor is wholly refreshing.

4) "Idealism" is a proud but battered word in discount this murky Fall, but one aspect of Harrison Williams' record deserves no other label. Who else has done so much for the migrant worker as he, and what issue is so certainly guaranteed not to produce votes? The migrant laborers from whom we avert our eyes even here in New Jersey as we speed by have no vote or influence and and say who I think will win. My husband favors Goldwater and I'm for Johnson and I think I'll leave it right there.

Norman Schechter, Montgomery Park I think Johnson will win because these are good times and he's a popular president. He'll carry 47 states. He'll get a large percentage of Republicans who voted for Nixon and I think the number of Democrats who will vote for Goldwater in the south will be negligible.

Robert R. Ritz, Willingboro, employee of Witherspoon Land Agency, Witherspoon and Hulfish I would say Johnson, primarily on the campaign Goldwater has run. It has been nothing but a toning down of his acceptance speech when he said, "Extremism in defense of liberty is no vice." I have a lot of friends in the National Guard and when they heard that, they envisioned all sorts of things — all of them had I agree with many things Goldwater says but I think his words here were ill-chosen.

Democrat

their exploiters most certainly do.

No trace of expediency or instant political cynicism can attach to Pele Williams' humanitarian concern for these forgotten members of our potentially Great Society. Contrast this with his opponent's warm endorsement of a candidate for President who fears the country is being run by "minority groups" and who would leave the Southern Negro to the tender mercies of local law and order.

All in all, 1964's New Jersey Senate contest can be summed up in Water Lippman's succinct two word comment on the Presidential race — "Some choice!"

BUSINESS In Princeton

TREND IS MIXED

Building, Car Sales Drop. The latest Business Index compiled by TOWN TOPICS for the Princeton community records a mixed trend during the quarter ending September 30. Offsetting upward movements in such fields as postal receipts, telephones in service and property transfers were decreases in two major areas: building activity and new car sales.

New housing starts in the Township were 11 percent lower for the quarter and 25 percent lower than the summer of 1963. The number of building permits was higher, but many were of a minor nature, as illustrated by a 70 percent drop in the value of construction undertaken in the Borough and a 14 percent drop in the Township. Of the $3 million worth of new construction in the latter municipality, some $2.1 million is represented by the additional junior faculty apartments being built near Carnegie Lake.

New car sales, which moved upward in the nation during the summer of 1964, were four percent lower in Princeton than they were a year ago. The decrease compared to the quarter ending in June was 20 percent.

Money in circulation varied only minutely during the past three months, a one percent increase being recorded in savings accounts and a corresponding drop in checking accounts. Money deposited in Princeton's two banks and two savings and loan associations totalled a healthy $63.7 million as of September 30.

Borrowing was also on the increase, up four percent over the second quarter of 1964 and 15 percent over the summer of 1963. Other indices showed postal receipts higher by 19 percent over the preceding quarter and a 3.3 percent rise in telephones in service during the past 12 months.

Parking meter receipts indicated that the Borough's business section was more heavily patronized this summer than last. The sum of $20,775.96 collected in pennies, nickels and dimes was a welcome 12 percent above the corresponding three months a year ago.

ART FIRM LAUNCHED. For Commercial Work, Two Princeton artists have joined to form a new commercial and advertising art firm to be known as G.E. Associates. Rex Goreleigh, the "G" of the title, has lived in Princeton as a participating and teaching artist for 17 years. His commercial experience began in Chicago where he was co-ordinator for Schreiner-Bennett. He has done illustrations for the Junior Encyclopedia Britannica and silk-screen for numerous brochures, posters, greeting cards and the like.

Formerly the director of art centers in Chicago and Greensboro, N. C., Mr. Goreleigh came to Princeton as director of Princeton Group Arts and later established his own teaching studio, the Studio-on-the-Canal.

James W. Edwards, the "E" in the title, has lived in Princeton for four years. He will serve the new company as production specialist, drawing on his commercial art experience with agencies in New York, Chicago, Madison (Wisconsin) and Balse, Switzerland.

Mr. Edwards, in his 15 years' experience, has handled accounts for IBM, General Electric, and Creative Playthings, among others. He has also done book illustrations (for a book by Art Buchwald) and magazine (work illustrations for the French magazine "Realities").

G. E. Associates will work with business firms, community organizations, clubs or individuals in the preparation of layouts in black and white or color; advertising posters; brochures; and even custom-made decorative tiles.

The two associates will work from their present studios, Mr. Goreleigh at 924-2889, Mr. Edwards at 921-2533.

McMANIGAL JOINS STAFF

Of Lenhart & Co. Rod McManigal, director of performing arts for the New Jersey Bicentennial Commission, has joined the public relations and advertising firm of Lenhart and Company as copy chief.

Mr. McManigal was previously with the McCarter Performing Arts Center as associate producer in charge of promotion. During the 1963 summer season he was general manager at the Cape Cod Melody Tent, Hyannis, Mass.

A native of Columbus, O., he has extensive experience in this country, and in England, in the field of communications. His background includes wartime service with the Marine Corps, a degree from Columbia in 1946, and graduate studies at Columbia, the Sorbonne and Oxford. He has been a Princeton resident since 1961.

WOODCUT IN COLOR: "Bridge at Basle" is one of the color woodcuts by John Ross now on view at Gallery 100.

The strength and simplicity of the artist's concept shows clearly even in this black and white reproduction.

ART In Princeton

GALLERY 100 EXHIBITS

John Ross, Through October, Gallery 100 will exhibit etchings and woodcuts by John Ross of Englewood. He is already known to Princeton through prints on file at the gallery and color woodcuts such as "Provincetown Beach" prominent in the "Landscape Show" of last year.

He is working with Governor Hughes' Committee for the Promotion of Fine Arts in New Jersey. Nationally, he is President of the Society of American Graphic Arts and recently was a member of a jury which selected a lithograph by Stuart Davis for a stamp honoring the Fine Arts. He made the adaptation and designed the stamp which is to be issued shortly.

His service has gone farther afield and now, under the auspices of the State Department, he is in Rumania giving lectures and demonstrations in conjunction with the exhibit "Graphics, U.S.A." The aim of this exhibition which goes to Iron Curtain countries is "to show the extent of freedom of expression that the American artist enjoys." Having seen his own exhibit, we are sure that Mr. Ross enjoys a vast freedom of expression which he can communicate in a language needing no words.

Romano-Ross. Another interesting feature of this artist's background is the close collaboration in his work with his wife, Claire Romano, an artist in her own right. (Exhibit of Graphics, Claire Romano, Gallery 100, 1963.)

Both graduates of Cooper Union, they share a studio and work together on book designs, book illustrations, typography and graphic design often under their double signature. While her husband is away, Claire Romano teaches his classes and keeps turning out prints.

Both are capable artists, able to retain their own individuality and yet to work harmoniously as a team. They have made it a unique way of life.

Recent Work. This exhibition consists entirely of John Ross' own etchings and woodcuts. Of the selection, the most interesting are the latest plates showing his development towards what he describes as more simplicity and concentration on fewer blocks and colors per print.

"The shapes and areas and the textural quality of the relief surface" which are his concern have been most highly developed in his color etching "Silent Walls," a Provincetown composition with secret color which comes out in light and dark contrasts. His texture may come from cheesecloth, string, paper, anything that can be lacquered and printed and suits the form or movement, but whatever it is that has been glued to this plate has blended right into the stone walls where it belongs.

Architecture. An appreciation of architecture, which was a serious part of his previous training, shows in such a picture as "Silent Walls" and "Manhattan Island." It is treated impressionistically in "Dumbo" and "Big Town" when he has combined woodcut with cardboardcut, the sharp edged splinters of cardboard creating a vibrating form which one feels he is seeing through moving light.

Illustrations. As an illustrator, John Ross has been in great demand. Some of his illustrations for the "Spoon River Anthology" appear here, and three of his black and white woodcuts for the new edition of "Leaves of Grass" to be published soon.

Illustrations, to be reduced and reproduced demand a technique which is strong and clear. These woodcuts are just that, and fitting to the subject besides.

For the opening description of "America The Beautiful"

By Archimedes (Bernard)

The coloring of hair has long intrigued women. As far back as the shining days of the Roman Empire women lightened their hair with quicklime. Egyptian women with a yearning for light locks used potent alkalis and cooked for hours in the sun.

Today it's a different story. Hair coloring is a matter of laboratory science and perfection of salon technique. From short-term coloring to two-process color, today's woman has little limitation in her choice of hair color.

Whether you choose to color your hair or to retain its natural shade, come to TAVERNWOOD BEAUTY MANOR & COSMETIC SHOP, 69 Palmer Square West, for expert hair care. Perhaps a new hair style or a different color would give you a new outlook on life. Phone 924-3983. "Preferred by particular women."

In honor of United Nations Week October 19-24 and United Nations Day October 24, 1964 we quote the Preamble to the Charter of the United Nations.

"We the peoples of the United Nations

Determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and, to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

And for these ends to practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbors, and to unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and to ensure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest and to employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims

Accordingly, our respective Governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations".

WHAT ARE YOU DOING IN YOUR DAILY LIFE TO PROMOTE THE IDEAS AND PRINCIPLES EXPRESSED IN THIS PREAMBLE?

SPORTS In Princeton

IVY ACTION RESUMES

Against Penn Saturday, Confronted with the fact that it will play only two of its remaining five Ivy League games at home, Princeton's football team heads for Philadelphia Saturday to meet last-place Penn. Franklin Field has been a friendly spot for the Tigers for many years; the average member of the current Orange and Black squad was four years old when Princeton last lost to the Quakers there in 1948.

Although it gave a better performance than anticipated in holding Rutgers to a 10-7 decision last weekend, Penn is again in considerable trouble during the fifth year of John Steigman's regime. The Red and Blue got by a weak Lehigh team in its opener and was then shut out by Brown and Cornell.

Steigman's future would seem to hang on the outcome of Saturday's meeting with Princeton. The Quakers would rather win this one than any game on their schedule, and if the former Tiger assistant coach can achieve such a resounding upset, his career at Penn may run longer. Rumors are circulating that a fifth season well below the break-even point may be his last.

The kickoff is set for 1:30 on Franklin Field. Penn fans have largely lost interest in their team in the last decade, and a crowd of 20,000 in the cavernous arena that seats 60,000 is unlikely.

Tiger Attack Sputters. The anticipated let-down against

QUICK LOOK AT PENN
OFFENSE: Negligible. Switch from single wing to T variations has produced one touchdown in last three games.

DEFENSE: Average, but Penn often does well against single wing because of Steigman's coaching.

CHIEF ASSET: Bruce Molloy, former tailback, now T quarterback.

CHIEF PROBLEM: Lack of top-flight material blended with low morale through inability to top .500 since 1959.

TYPE OF ATTACK: "Multiple offense," largely T.

Colgate occurred last week, and Princetonians were content to settle for a 9-0 triumph that kept their team unbeaten. It is of considerable importance, however, that the offense improves against Pennsylvania, for the Tigers are putting too much of a burden on their defensive unit.

"We don't really know what we're doing wrong," Dick Colman commented in reviewing the Colgate game, which had seen Princeton fail to make a first down in the second half. "It's really just a case of failing to knock the other guys' team down. We are not a strong team offensively, but we hope to get better — particularly if our injured players return."

Tackle Dick Jones, guard Ned Porter and reserve center Kit Mill were all out of action against Colgate with knee injuries, and Princeton blocking was markedly below par. Expectations were that all would be ready for Penn.

Colgate used an undershirt that limited Cosmo Iacavazzi to 50 yards in 15 carries, and when Princeton blocking failed to clear the way for sweeps by Don McKay and Doug Tufts, the Tigers were largely shackled throughout the contest. For the third time in four games, the opposition gained more yardage than the winning Princetonians. Last week, it was 195 to 165 for Colgate.

Princeton's ability to keep the visitors from penetrating beyond its 18 yard line told the story of the game after the home team had hung nine points on the scoreboard in the second period. Colgate's defense was rated by Colman as "the best we have faced this season," the Red Raiders showing fine speed to go with unusual size and durability.

Early in the second period, Stas Maliszewski became the only player in the last three games to score a touchdown through the Colgate line. Typically in the right place when the break occurred, he picked down a fumble out of the air on the visitors' six-yard line and churned into the end zone untouched.

Unexpectedly, a defensive lapse allowed Colgate to block Charlie Gogolak's placement, so that his field goal that followed six minutes later was a valuable margin of safety. He booted this from 29 yards out, and on the last play of the half just missed one that covered 60 yards. It was actually high enough, but wide to the right.

The second half was one of the duller witnessed in Palmer Stadium in a number of seasons. Princeton gained a total of just 32 yards, was rarely across midfield and had to concentrate on stalling one Colgate drive after another. But as Coach Hal Lahar said ruefully, "We were a great team in the middle of the field." The visitors never came close to the Princeton end zone, and the outcome left the Tigers the only unbeaten, untied team in the Ivy League and one of very few in the East.

delphia from Rutgers, he installed the single wing, and the fans howled that it was outdated. Sierman didn't agree with them, but he decided last year that all the best players who like single wing go to Princeton, so he announced that Penn would use a "multiple offense."

The Quakers are accordingly operating primarily out of a T with flankers and will probably run a number of single wing plays in an attempt to tax the Princeton defense. Bruce Mulloy, who played last fall with his arm strapped to his side, has undergone an operation and now passes from the T quarterback or tailback position. He has not, however, met with much success.

Barry Ellman, a 165-lb halfback, has good speed, and pairs with Joe Schulz in the starting lineup. Up front, the Quakers are thin at tackle and center. Captain Jim Riepe, a 200-lb guard, is probably their top lineman.

Last year, the Quakers were a 34-0 victim of Princeton's in Palmer Stadium in the third game of the season. The Tigers' continuing problems on offense make a repeat of that score unlikely, but it will be surprising if they do not dominate the game with fairly complete authority. Lacking a single stand-out player and markedly thin in spots, Penn figures to be distinctly outmanned.

PHS, 27-0, OVER TRENTON
Meets Ewing Saturday. Neither rain, nor mud nor gloom of day could stop Princeton High School from the swift completion Saturday of a 27-0 triumph in football over Trenton High. Rolling now the Blue and White will try to carry the mail next against Ewing which comes to town Saturday for a 2 p.m. contest.

The Ewing encounter falls into the "either-or" category: either the Blue Devils or the Little Tigers could win this one big. Asked what he thought his chances were Saturday, PHS coach Dick Wood replied, "I think we have a good chance against Ewing, sure, but they are going to be tough. They always play a good one against us."

To a large degree as goes Bill Laarz, so goes Ewing Pound for pound, Laarz is probably the best halfback in Mercer County. Certainly he is one of the fastest. It is against this possibility that Laarz can break away for a long gain.

A Strange Statistical Story

As one of the nation's few unbeaten and untied football teams, Princeton is probably unique in that it currently stands a poor second to the combined efforts of its first four opponents in most of the statistics.

Rutgers, Columbia, Dartmouth and Colgate have chalked up 53 first downs to 33 for the Tigers, and have outgained them, 975 yards to 900. Princeton's running game has proved superior (625 yards to 314) but the Orange and Black has been badly outpassed. The opposition has completed 57 aerials good for 661 yards to the 22 Princeton has managed for 275 yards.

Despite this apparent deficiency in ability to move the ball, and to keep the other team from gaining ground steadily, the Tigers have amassed 29 points while holding the four losing teams to a total of 27. The answer is two fold:

Other statistics tell part of the story. Princeton has intercepted five passes and recovered nine fumbles, for a total of 14 such sudden-death finishes to opponents' potential scoring marches. In contrast, the Tigers have suffered only two pass interceptions and lost but four fumbles.

Finally, it is the ability of the defense to rise to the occasion the closer it is backed to its own goal line that has made the difference. Rutgers was stopped on the two in a game that went to Princeton, 10-7; Columbia was halted inside the 20 three times; the Tigers look the ball away from Dartmouth seven times on interceptions and fumbles; and Colgate was shut out.

As has been said, "When the going gets tough, the tough get going."

On any play that PHS must key its defense.

An example of Laarz's effectiveness can be gleaned from a check of the statistics of Ewing's last contest against Asbury Park, which Ewing lost, 13-7. Of the 202 yards Ewing gained rushing, Laarz accounted for 125 and six first downs.

Goal: Stop Laarz. To capitalize on Laarz's speed, Ewing uses the pitch out and the end sweep with great effectiveness. "They're good at that," said Wood. He indicated that PHS will devote a large portion of the week's practice toward countering this.

As for Ewing itself, it enters the contest with a 2-2 record. It goes off to a running start with a 19-0 victory over Trenton, but this is not the feat everyone first thought because Trenton has yet to win this year. Since then, coach Steve Meunch and his squad have been frustrated twice. So with Ewing hoping to get back in the win column and with PHS hoping to maintain the momentum of what promises to be a successful season, the desire for victory is high in both camps.

Princeton's Day. Against PHS Saturday, Trenton managed to score its first and only touchdown so far this season. It was to be the only balm for the winless Tornadoes all afternoon. That it was going to be Princeton's day was evident from the start.

Starting on their own 28, the little Tigers marched 72 yards for a score the first time they got their hands on the ball. Ignoring the light rain that fell throughout the game, Anthony Adams and Bill Aiken tore through the Trenton defense for huge yardage: Adams a first down at midfield, Aiken 20 yards from the 48 to Trenton's 28, Aiken a first down to the 11 on a trap, Aiken scoring on the next play on an 11-yard end sweep.

In the second period, Colin Leitch drove the visitors back with a booming, spiraling punt that rolled dead on the THS 12. On the following play, a low pass from center rolled into the end zone.

Craig Beachell, leading a host of charging Little Tigers, fell on the ball for Princeton's second tally. Bill Bartolino then kicked his sixth consecutive extra point to give PHS a 14-0 half-time lead.

Uninspired Trenton play aided the home team. According to Coach Wood, Trenton's new coach, Bob Callahan, told him after the game that his team lacked spirit and the will to win. This indifference was noticeable Saturday but in the third quarter the Tornadoes sprang to life.

When Bill Cirullo was unable to find the handle to the second-half kickoff, Trenton recovered on the PHS 24. A few plays later with a first and ten from the one-foot line, it scored. Shortly thereafter,

All the men of the American Mt. Everest Expedition wore Duofold when they conquered Everest, battling 25° below cold and 80 m.p.h. winds. It worked because it kept them warm, dry and comfortable with the unique 2-layer construction. Soft, itch-free cotton next to your skin absorbs moisture. The air space between is an insulator. The outer layer of wool/Nylon/cotton evaporates the moisture away from your skin and kills chills. If your job, or your hobby, takes you out in the cold, you need Duofold. the losers were driving deep again but Ed McEwen ended the threat by intercepting a pass on the PHS three. That was Trenton's last challenge.

At the start of the final quarter, Trenton pushed back to its own ten by a fine defensive tackle by Dominic Mastroianni, punted short to its own 32. Bill Bartolino, Aiken and Adams carried to the nine from where full back Bob Mooney scored on a fine, twisting gallop.

The PAT attempt was blocked but Trenton was charged with roughing the holder. On his second chance, Bartolino rammed the ball through the uprights for seven straight without a miss.

The home team got number four, after Jack Van Zandt recovered a Tornado fumble on the TIS 24 to set it up. Adams carried to the 18, was hurt on the play and had to be carried off the field. (He will play against Ewing). Then Cirullo hit Bruce Tippi, the weak side end, with a running pass for 18 yards and Princeton's 27th point. It was the first pass ever thrown to Tippi, a senior, who played mostly on defense last year. THS blocked Bartolino's try for the extra point, breaking his string.

In Lights. Perhaps it was fitting that this decisive score should be the first one to go up in lights. Across the eastern end of the field, on Princeton High's new electric scoreboard, the yellow lights cut through the greyness. Home 27, Visitors 6.

Wood was pleased with the win but he reported that he was far from satisfied with the offensive blocking. "We've got a lot of work to do. Defensively, too," he said. He did say that tackle Anthony Arcaro played probably his best game of the season and that Paul Shields made a number of fine tackles. Other linemen who Senator Goldwater!

President Kennedy called the NUCLEAR TEST BAN TREATY "an important first step — a step toward reason, a step away from war."

The Senate voted for it 80-19.

Experts* in the current issue of Scientific American call the treaty "an important first step toward finding a solution" to the "dilemma of steadily increasing military power and steadily decreasing national security."

But you, Senator Goldwater, voted against the treaty and called it "a political ambush, baited by the necessity of the Soviet to ease the many pressures upon its tyranny."

With at least 75% of our American Nobel Prize Winners in Science, we are voting against you on November 3, Senator Goldwater.

Hall Wins Tournament

Harry Hall won the men's championship at Springdale Golf Club last weekend, defeating Bob Shaw in the finals by a 6 and 5 margin. This is the fifth time he has taken the championship, having won it previously in 1952, 1954, 1957 and 1961. Hall won all four of his matches in this year's event by substantial margins. In addition to the 6 and 5 final, he scored a 5 and 3 win over George Young in the opening round, then defeated Maury Mather, 5 and 4, and beat Brad Cook, the defending champion, 4 to 3. Jack Gulek won the fourth flight of the tournament by beating Ollie Houghton 1 up on the 10th hole. Winner of the fifth flight was DeWitt Boice, who defeated Harry Volweider, also 1 up on the 19th.

HUN THREE FOR THREE
Solebury Here Saturday. At the Hun School, 1964 may be remembered not as the year Khushchev was bunned but as the year the Red and Black won its first Penn-Jersey League crown.

Coach Hawley Waterman's squad took a big step in that direction Friday when it defeated previously unbeaten Germantown Friends, 26-13. The victory left Hun all alone at the top in the league standings with a 3-0 mark. Now only three schools — Solebury, Friends Central and George School — none of them insurmountable, stand in the way.

Of those three, Solebury, Hun's upcoming opponent, represents the biggest hurdle. The Spartans, 3-1 overall and 2-1 in league competition, share second place in the conference with Germantown Friends. Solebury will match its speed against Hun's defense Saturday afternoon here in a 2-30 contest.

No one in the league takes Solebury lightly because it boasts an explosive runner in Bryant Mitchell. Mitchell was acknowledged to be the fastest back in the league last year and as Waterman stated: "He's back and just as good or better than ever."

Fantastic Speed. "His speed is just fantastic," Waterman continued. "If we can't contain him we're done because we don't have anybody who can catch him. Sure we have a good, tough defense, but our players are all big and not too fast. Once Mitchell gets through the line, he's gone."

Last year, Mitchell's speed defeated Hun. This fall, Hun is a markedly superior team, especially an defense. "If we keep hustling and can stop Mitchell, maybe we'll get number four," said Waterman.

Friday in Philadelphia the big contest between Hun and Germantown Friends turned out to be no contest at all. Hun scored the first time it got the ball and won easily.

After Al Landis bucked over from the two for Hun's initial rally, the Quaker's retaliated with a scoring march of their own for a 7-7 tie. Hun then moved ahead to stay in the second quarter when Mark Savidge connected with end Lonnie Kaplan on a 33-yard scoring pass, Kaplan snaring it on the tee and taking it in.

In the second half, the victors removed the game from the "close" category. Scott Page capped another scoring thrust and Kaplan added the fourth TD. He picked off a Germantown pass in the flat and raced to the goal line 46 yards away. With less than two minutes to go, the home team scored on a long pass against a Hun unit comprised mostly of reserves.

"Everyone wanted to win this one and it was a team effort," commented Waterman. He readily admitted, however, that he considered Trenton's Kaplan to be the outstanding performer that afternoon. "Not only did he score two touchdowns on that long pass and interception but he also played well defensively."

In the World and in the Nation

NOW IS THE TIME to SEND IN A NEW TEAM

So said former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon on a TV broadcast on Sunday, October 18. He made this statement with reference to the change in leadership in the Kremlin and the Red Chinese atomic explosion, AND, the opportunity these events present to America.

Why do we need a NEW TEAM?

Because, as Mr. Nixon says — The Kremlin will have younger and tougher leadership.

It will take from 6 to 12 months to complete the internal struggle for power in the Kremlin, thus giving the FREE world valuable time to establish positive policies toward communism.

It will give our NEW President — Senator Goldwater — the time to re-establish the SUCCESSFUL foreign policy of the EISENHOWER-DULLES years.

We MUST replace an 'OLD' TEAM that has brought us these FAILURES:

The Berlin Wall	(1961)
The Bay of Pigs	(1961)
Laos "Accord"	(1962)
Panama	(1963)
War in Laos	(1963)
Viet Nam	(1964)

WE ASK: Does a team with a record like this deserve your confidence and a chance to continue to FAIL?

About the DEBATE Challenge

The Princeton Citizens for Goldwater-Miller have requested the League of Women Voters to sponsor a debate. They have AGREED. We have contacted Dr. Ernest Gordon and ACCEPTED his challenge. The conversation was "extremely" brief.

We believe the public is entitled to hear a debate even though the opposition doesn't think so. Can it be that their position is indefensible?

The Princeton Citizens for Goldwater-Miller have been holding many successful coffee hours (see below) where people have had questions answered with "facts" and not adjectives.

We AGAIN CHALLENGE them to defend themselves on any or ALL of the following issues:

INTEGRITY in government
The MORALITY of the country
FOREIGN POLICY in the nuclear age
DEMOCRACY vs. SOCIALISM
Political ETHICS

CIVIL RIGHTS
Federal and States' RIGHTS
SOCIAL SECURITY
MEDICAL CARE for ALL ages

AN INVITATION: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reylek, 111 Carter Road, cordially invites the public to come and hear Mrs. F. J. O'Hara III and Mr. Mark Jones discuss the Presidential campaign issues on SATURDAY MORNING (10:30 a.m.) OCTOBER 24, That's this coming Saturday. Coffee, cider and doughnuts will be served. BRING your friends, BRING questions.

About MORALITY & INTEGRITY

SENATOR GOLDWATER SAYS:

"Where the examples of morality should be set, the opposite is seen. Rather than moral leadership we have been given bread, circuses and scandal. Small men, seeking great wealth or power, have too often and too long turned even the highest levels of public service into mere personal opportunity. Certainly, simple honesty is not too much to demand of men in government, no matter how exalted or protected the position."

Acceptance Speech, July, 1964

LYNDON BAINES JOHNSON SAYS:

"Bobby Baker is my strong right arm. He is the last man I see at night and the first one I see in the morning."

About our CONSTITUTION

I find I am all wrong. For almost 40 years I have been writing articles whose purpose was to uphold the ideals and principles of our Constitution which I thought were incontrovertible, and upon which our beloved country was founded and built. Apparently now we need a new one based upon the following widely accepted beliefs:

1. You can spend your way into prosperity.
2. A balanced budget is obsolete and should not be attempted.
3. To be in debt is good. To be in the black very bad.
4. Government must be in competition with business, else it (business) will become too powerful and profitable.
5. About one-tenth of our population is now employed by government, federal, state and local. The horrible objective is to have 100 per cent so employed, Socialism.
6. The party now in office must become so powerful by means of tax, spend and elect that it will result in the elimination of all but one party, Socialistic dictatorship.
7. That some inflation is good and can be controlled, history notwithstanding.
8. That the Federal Government and the Supreme Court must become the sole arbiters of our lives through the progressive curtailment of our protective states rights and the legislative (Congress).
9. That the paring away of the individual earnings of the people through taxation, waste and huge grants, both locally and to foreign countries, assists in obtaining the objective. This could not be attained as long as we are in a sound and prosperous condition.
10. That high moral standards are not sine qua non in high places as an example for all, especially the young. The essential thing is to convince the majority that what our paternalistic government does for them is good and that they should not worry about who will pay the bill for these so-called benefits.

Yes, if we can accept these as ten commandments upon which to base a new Constitution and keep the Democrats in office ad infinitum, we would have quite a country and quite a government. Don't you agree? If you do, just go and vote for them in November.

KNOW YOUR PASTOR

Mr. Auer's Hour. A skillful tennis player is volleying questions and answers at Trinity Church during the Sunday morning split session.

Combining wit and nimble footwork, the Rev. E. Rugby Auer has sparked religious discussion with the give-and-take of the courts. Parents who wander into Pierce Hall in search of a cup of instant coffee find themselves involved in articulate commentary on the Church.

An average of 30 to 40 men and women arrive to pass the sugar and the Precm. They discuss Holy Communion vs. Morning Prayer and definitions of Christianity.

They examine the Anglo-Episcopalian beliefs and ask typically Princeton questions such as "Are there any statistics on how many people have been converted to the Episcopal Church from other Christian denominations? If so, which Church seems to have provided the most converts? Would this have any bearing on why we find the Church difficult to discuss?"

The Rev. Mr. Auer returned this one into the net. He had no statistics.

At the first session, everyone more or less agreed that religion "is hard to talk about," and they've been talking ever since.

The Rev. Mr. Auer has a goal "I want to set a climate where people feel free to talk about doctrine. There seems to be a real hunger for this."

Q & A: The Rev. E. Rugby Auer, a newcomer to Trinity Parish, has developed an informal Sunday forum in Pierce Hall. Story this page.

Came from New York. He has developed similar groups in his New York state parishes. He was rector of St. Mark's Syracuse, for nine years, St. Paul's, Waterloo, for five years, and at Manlius, five years.

A graduate of Syracuse University, he received his ministerial training at the Episcopal Seminary at the University of the South.

He has served as a delegate to the Episcopalian's General Convention and as dean of the Fingerlakes Conference.

As keen about golf as he is about tennis, interests which Mrs. Auer shares, he has moved with his wife and his two teenage children to 116 Fisher Place, Penns Neck.

Shares Pastoral Work. At Trinity since September, he is sharing in the pastoral work of the large parish. He is going to work on the development of the church library and hopes to continue Trinity's adult school this coming spring.

"There are three things I'd like to do here," he said recently. "One, develop a strong corps versed in church teaching and faith; two, home meetings to strengthen the parish through smaller groups, and three, I hope to provide a place in the parish where new families will feel involved in parish life."

"I am very much interested in the ecumenical movement in the sense of involvement and in the sense that this is a command of our Lord that cannot go unattended. It must be dealt with and thought about."

In November he will institute a series of Sunday night addresses from the nave of the church, rather than from the pulpit. The emphasis, he says, is to try to keep the penitential aspect of Advent "and not rush into Christmas as we are inclined to do."

His Sunday forums at Trinity have drawn a response which pinpoints his belief that "one of the troubles the Church has is that it doesn't allow people to verbalize. This, he's working on."

TO HOLD PARITY

On World Religions. Scholars from Protestant, Eastern Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Jewish and the Humanist traditions will meet next Wednesday and Thursday at Princeton Seminary to discuss world religions. The theme is "The Phenomenon of Convergence and the Course of Prejudice."

The conference, announced by President James I. McCord, is directed by Edward J. Jurji, professor of history of religions at the Seminary, formerly of Princeton University and the Institute for Advanced Study.

"The purpose of the dialogue," Dr. Jurji states, "is an attempt to discover new areas of understanding, cooperation and good will, not to unify the religions nor make religion a secular subject."

Findings of this first conference of its kind will inevitably pave the way for a second event in 1965, which will take the form of a forum of world faiths. America's pluralist society—despite obvious shortcomings—may well serve as a preliminary model in mankind's quest for unity in diversity.

Lectures in Miller Chapel. Two public lectures in Miller Chapel are scheduled: Nels F. S. Feire, professor of theology at Amherst Newton Theological Seminary, will discuss "Religion and the One World Idea" at 8 p.m. next Wednesday. Felmer S. C. Northrop of the Yale University Law School will speak on "The World's Religions at Mid-Century" at 6 the following evening.

The conference is known as the Edward F. Gallagher World Religions Conference, after the Indianapolis, Ind., Christian layman and business leader who is sponsoring the series.

Lecturers for the opening day include Abraham Joshua Heschel of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, Harvard psychologist Gordon W. Allport, Father Bernard J. Cooke, S. J., theology department chairman at Marquette University, and Joseph N. Kitagawa, professor of the history of religions, University of Chicago.

Princetonians taking part in the conference include University professors Philip H. Ashby, Malcolm L. Diamond, Georges Florovsky and Matius B. Jansen; from the Seminary Professors Seward Hiltner and Hugh T. Kerr.

HALLOWEEN PLANS SET By Youth Council. A Halloween costume party for children up to age 12 will be given at 4 p.m. next Saturday, October 31, by the Princeton Church Youth Council in the Methodist Church.

Nearly 200 teenagers from the inter-denominational group will set out at 7:30 p.m. on Halloween to solicit funds for UNICEF, the United Nations' International Children's Emergency Fund. A party at the church follows.

Members of the UNICEF committee are Ellen Spinner, Linda McCall, Susan Male, Ed Goetz, Susan Heiermann and Cheryl Warfield. Mrs. Raymond Male is adviser. Their goal is $1,500.

BULLETIN NOTES

"Extremism." Algernon D. Black, leader of the New York Society for Ethical Culture, will discuss "The Meaning of Extremism" at 10:30 a.m. this Sunday before the Ethical Culture Fellowship of Princeton, meeting at the Chapin School, Province Line Road. The public is welcome.

Quiet Day. All women of the community are invited by the WSCS of Princeton Methodist Church to attend Quiet Day observance next Thursday in the chapel. The service, directed by Mrs. Arthur Benson, begins at 10 a.m.; a silent meal will be held at noon. Mrs. E. C. Hogan Jr., president, asks all participants to bring a sandwich, soup and beverage will be provided. Women able to attend for a portion of the day are also welcome.

Sacred Drama. Shaw's "Saint Joan" will be given by The Bishop's Company at 7 p.m. this Sunday in the assembly room of First Presbyterian Church. The nationally-known repertory group, formed 12 years ago, has effected a revival of interest in church drama. An offering will be received.

Church & Law. "The Church, The Schools and the Law" is the topic of a seminar, November 6 and 7, to be conducted by Dean Willard Heckel of Rutgers Law School. Further information may be obtained from Princeton's Center for Continuing Education, 12 Library Place.

Reformation Service. The Youth Fellowship of Messiah Lutheran Church and the Concordia Society of Princeton University are sponsoring a Reformation Service at 7 p.m. this Sunday at the church. Parts of the liturgy will be sung to Negro folk music. The Rev. Arthur Simon of Trinity Lutheran Church in New York City's East Side will preach.

Korea. Mrs. Kenneth J. Foreman Jr. will discuss the 10 years she and her husband spent as missionaries in Korea this Sunday evening at a meeting of the Witherspoon Presbyterian Women's Association. New officers will be elected. Members of Circle 2 are hostesses.

Fiesta. Kingston Presbyterian Church will hold a "Spanish Fiesta" this Sunday, beginning at 5:30 p.m. Charles Evans, chairman of the mission commission, is in charge. Honorary guests are the Rev. and Mrs. Antonio Velody and their family of Columbia, C. A. Mrs. Harry Riddell is decorations chairman.

Lutheran Laymen. Carl Lindgren and Arnold Pecht of Messiah Lutheran are on the arrangements committee for the second annual Reformation Festival Vesper Service of the Central Delaware Lutheran Laymen's League. The service is set for 4 p.m. Sunday at St. Paul's, Flemington. The Rev. Luther Krieff of Messiah Lutheran will preach on "What It Means to Be a Lutheran in This Age of Ecumenism." Cory S. Kommier

In talking about the importance of skilled mechanics to our civilization, an acquaintance said, "Can you imagine our plight if we did not have capable maintenance men for all our complicated machines? Industry would grind to a halt, all transportation would eventually stop in their tracks, and our homes, one by one, would become pioneer cabins." He told us about a primitive village in India, where they had an automatic pump installed in their only well, and sealed it over with cement. Eventually the pump broke down, and no one in the village knew what to do. For months, while they waited for a repairman, their only source of water was a muddy pond used by their cattle. As we have said before, for hundreds of thousands of young men, becoming a skilled mechanic offers unusual opportunity, a satisfying life, and a career that frequently leads to independence. Ask any successful owner of a mechanical, electrical, plumbing, business, etc., how he started. We feel it is a public service to relate such facts once in a while just as we pledge serving your best interests is our first and last goal. D. Mershon Green, 103, died
October 10, at the Odd Fellows Home, Trenton, where he had lived for the past seven years.
Mr. Green, a skilled carpenter and cabinetmaker, was born in Princeton on October 22, 1860. He learned his craft in his father's sash and blind factory, and worked at his trade until he was in his 90's.
He built furniture for undergraduates of the College of New Jersey during the early '80's. After 16 years in New York City, he returned to Princeton where he built the first house on Aiken Avenue.
Until going into business for himself in the 1920's, Mr.
Green specialized in residential interiors for Princeton firms and for the University.
His favorite relaxation was music and he was a leading member of the Princeton Methodist Church Choir almost continuously from the Spanish
American War until he left Princeton in 1957 to move to the Odd Fellows Home.
A member of the church for 68 years, he served on the official board and the trustees.

Mr. Green was a charter member of the Monday Club at First Presbyterian Church

hobby and constructed elaborate doll houses and intricate

Two years later he purchased
200 acres at the south end

Bradley Stars as U.S. Olympic Team Nears Final Round
Eighteen points in the toughest game the U. S. Olympic Team has played — against Yugoslavia — has been typical of the performance Bill Bradley has been giving in Tokyo.
The Americans led by no more than 35-34 at the half, pulling away to a 69-61 decision. Another rugged battle is expected Friday when the Russians will be the final opponent in the showdown for the Gold Medal in this sport. The game will be televised Saturday afternoon on Channels 3 and 4.
Bradley has been in double figures three times in the first seven games, and his all-around floor play has been instrumental in keeping intact this country's record of never having lost in Olympic basketball competition.
Elsewhere on the basketball scene, Princeton has been drawn against Syracuse in the first round of the Holiday Invitation Tournament scheduled to start Monday, December 28, in Madison Square Garden. The New Yorkers are rated as possibly the best team in the East.
If the Tigers win, they'll face the victor of the game between La Salle and St. John's. In other first-round pairings, Cincinnati plays Temple and Michigan takes on Manhattan.

K. M. Light REAL ESTATE

TOPFLIGHT CONTEMPORARY

We planned to present this brand new listing with the splash it deserves, picture included, but the weather crossed us up. So for the nonce let us just say that this is one of the few truly handsome large contemporary houses in Princeton, beautifully built and stunningly situated.

For a big, active family who loves the great outdoors and privacy but doesn't want to move miles away from town to have both, this house is it. Picture and details next week, but why wait? You can see the property itself by calling us for an appointment.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

All rights reserved. © E. P. Williams & Co., Inc. New York

"NOT LIKE PLAYING POKER..."

"You'd think some folks were playing poker instead of buying a house, or maybe making a major improvement."

"Let's take a chance. . . acts to be the final desperate decision-maker for all too many people. Believe me they could probably stand a few poker losses much better than getting a house or equipment that's obsolete almost immediately."

Those are the sentiments of a bank official explaining why the loan department can be real help. "We know that by making the applicants think things through. . . they, like us, can make a sound investment."

Electrical heating, he feels, is a good sign of a good investment. "When you get into the subject of new Gold Medallion homes you know what you're getting."

"Naturally we also look with favor on applications for conversion to electrical heating when we know the job is going to be done right since it increases the life and salability of a house."

— Long Term Saving —

Reasons for installing electrical heat in preference to other types of home heating systems include:

- Electricity is "the fuel of tomorrow, today." An electrical home heating system will continue to be an asset for years to come, not a defraction.

- Both the wiring and other equipment can be expected to last indefinitely in top functioning condition.

The bankman's final advice: "remember you don't have to take a poker player's type chances on your major investment. Get the facts and look to the future. Remember you're either going to be living in that house you're buying in the future. . . as well as now, or maybe trying to sell it in the future. "Since the heating of the future" is available, better not let yourself get side-tracked by anything that even now - since the advent of electrical heating - is already old fashioned."

"If I Had To Do It Over Again. . ."

"If I had to do it over again?"

"Why I'd change the location of my office to the other side of the breezeway. . . but I'd certainly do just what I did about the electrical heating system."

Those are the words of a dentist who maintains his office at his home.

"Indeed," he elaborates, "with electrical heating I know that the 'less-attached' arrangement would have proven highly economical. I hadn't quite foreseen the precision I'm getting from our thermostat in every-room equipment."

"Since the office isn't normally open on Sunday I could drop the temperature way down. . . yet know I could bring it up in no time flat should I have to care for an emergency case."

"So I might change a few things about the house. . . but not the concept of complete electrical heating. For me, it's here to stay."

UP-DATE...

ANTIQUE HEATING NOW!

This elegant relic reminds us of by-gone days. Be elegant, better your days ahead with total electric home heating.

QUESTION BOX

Q. I have been told it is possible to heat a room through a certain kind of electric lights on the ceiling. Where can I get information?

A. What you may have heard about is — a research project. . . and not something that is on the market. What is on the market, perfected and very popular is heating by radiant ceiling cable. If you wish, it needn't be even as "visible" as a light fixture. It can be totally concealed by plaster. Your local contractor can give you full details. . . even operating cost estimates.

Q. Should the basement of an electrically heated house be heated?

A. Whether an electrically heated house does or doesn't have a basement is strictly a personal preference. But, when you do have a basement, heating is recommended. With the great temperature selections available with electrical heating, a very moderate setting will be possible when the basement is not otherwise in use. Similarly, if you want a cooler section for storage of certain foods, you can dial way down for that area of the basement. . . with a warmer setting for work bench or recreation areas.

Q. I'm told that a national magazine had a good article on electrical heating earlier this year. . . but my local librarian hasn't been able to come up with the information. Can you help?

A. Sounds as if you may mean "The Big Shift to Electric Heat" in the March, 1964 issue of American Home. But for your further information: are you aware that your own utility company's offices have an excellent offering of leaflets and booklets. You should also avail yourself of these.

Q. How much electrical baseboard footage will I need to heat a 26 by 40 room?

A. The first thing wrong about your question, is the question! If you mean you're converting a house that's already built you should be talking to a contractor.

Keep your throatline young.

A soft, flabby neck and throat area can make a woman look far older than her years. To correct this condition and to help keep a firm, sleek throat line, Frances Denney has developed an effective modern treatment:

NECK AND CONTOUR ASTRINGENT

is used first to tighten and tone the skin in this area. 5.00 and 8.50*

NECK AND CONTOUR LIFT

follows immediately. This smooth-textured, readily-absorbable cream gives a powerful firming action while it counteracts dryness. 5.00 and 8.50*

TWO-WAY NECK AND CHIN STRAP

should be worn for a few minutes if the condition is serious. 5.00*

Frances Denney

A few fun-to-do exercises will help maintain muscle tone. Both the treatment and the exercises will be demonstrated for you by our Frances Denney consultant.
